Holland Is Placed under Martial Law To Prevent Spying by Belligerents

Royal Decree Threatens Attempts by any Foreign Power To Interfere with Neutrality

By J. REILLY O'SULLIVAN

The Hague, April 19 (AP)—All Holland was placed under martial law today in a royal decree more far-reaching than any since the country's declaration of neutrality two years ago. The action was taken to permit more drastic measures against persons within the nation who are suspected of aiding belligerents who would endanger its safety.

The decree was issued after old Premier Dirk Jan De Geer, in a broadcast to home and empire on the sides of the world, had declared that Holland would resist by force any attempt by a foreign power to extend "protective" help to the Netherlands.

Given before Queen Wilhelmina signed today's all-embracing decree, 18 points of martial law, of which the most important were that no person should be permitted to leave the country's elaborate and secret system of land, sea and water-line defenses.

Warning to Spies

Authoritative Netherlands said today that loyal, law-abiding citizens should not be inconvenienced by the situation of the state of siege of the entire country, and that there should be little interference with ordinary civil administration.

Yugoslavia Balks Plot To Overturn Its Government

Former Premier Interned for Being "Friend of Germany"

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, April 19 (AP)—Yugoslavian authorities announced tonight they had discovered a plot to overthrow the government and turn the country over to the Nazis and interned former premier Milan Stoyadinovic, "friend of Germany."

Assured by Both Sides

"We have received assurances from both belligerents that they will safeguard this neutrality of Yugoslavia. We trust today these assurances can be relied upon."

"But in any case we wish to make perfectly clear that we, ourselves, are perfectly clear as well as determined to protect our neutrality. We wish to take this occasion to point out that Holland, at any rate, does not ask for, and is unwilling to accept the aid of any third power to maintain its neutrality."

Front Men Not Wanted

"We want no Quislings, no Henchmen, no Hachas, no Seyss-Inquarts in Yugoslavia," said one official. He was referring to Germany's "front men" in the invaded countries of Norway, the Sudeten and Poland.

Charges New Deal Plans To Strangle Insurance Companies

Charleston, W. Va., April 19 (AP)—Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio charged tonight that "there is a clear indication" that the federal government proposes "sooner or later" to "strangle" life insurance companies with bureaucratic regulations.

Making his second speech of the day in West Virginia, the Republican presidential aspirant told the Association of Life Underwriters in a prepared text:

"There is no doubt in my mind that the New Deal philosophy which dominates the government at Washington is hostile to life insurance."

"The New Deal philosophy," he said, "is a philosophy of government intervention in a whole industry where abuse occurs, prefers government regulation of any specially important function. It has started a so-called insurance plan of its own in the old age pension title of the Social Security Act. The only trouble with that is that it doesn't perform any of the functions of life insurance."

Germany Drawing Upon Reserves in Expanding Drives

Pulling Belt Tighter, Walter Funk Says in Berlin Speech

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

Berlin, April 19 (AP)—Germany is paying her way in part for her wide-flung war activities on the Siegfried line, in Poland, Denmark and Norway but is pulling her belt tight and drawing ruthlessly on her reserves, Walter Funk disclosed today.

Funk, minister of economics and president of the Reichsbank, gave an insight into the country's economic picture on a day when the nation marked among other chief developments in the war:

1. Latest German advice from Scandinavia said German troops pushing up the Glommen river twenty miles inside Norway from the Swedish border drove today to the vicinity of Elverum and that one-time refuge of King Haakon VII and his government was expected to fall at any moment.

2. German bombers tonight attacked British transports off the west coast of Norway, an official announcement said, and struck one with a heavy missile. Whether the transport sank was not reported.

3. The German high command, reviewing yesterday's operations, said German fliers sank a submarine and hit other vessels in a surprise raid as the British began landing troops in the far north; three other submarines were reported sunk in the Skagerrak and Kattegat as well as a Norwegian torpedo boat on the west coast of Norway.

4. On German orders to be out of the country by midnight, Arne Scheel, Norwegian minister to Berlin, and other members of the Norwegian diplomatic staff and their families left by special train in an effort to reach Norway by way of Denmark.

5. Minister of Propaganda Paul Joseph Goebbels, in a radio address on the eve of Adolf Hitler's 51st birthday, said the Führer "has the complete love and complete obedience of his people" and British efforts "to sow the seeds of disunity among us" were doomed to failure.

So determined is the Nazi regime to make good Hitler's New Year's

Bruce and O'Connor Hand Each Other High Compliments

Radcliffe's Opponent Stages Rally in St. Mary's County

Leonardtown, Md., April 19 (AP)—Howard W. Bruce's Democratic senatorial campaign bandwagon swept into St. Mary's county today for a two-hour rally which developed into something of a mutual admiration society.

Bruce paid high praise to Governor O'Connor, who paid even more praise to Bruce. State Senator Philip Dorsey, Jr., (D-St. Mary's), who presided, gave Bruce a glowing send-off, then sat back to hear Governor O'Connor describe Bruce as "the most efficient senator in the state."

Reiterates Previous Claims

Bruce, whose address was comparatively brief, reiterated previous claims that his opponent for the Senatorial nomination, Senator George L. Radcliffe, had voted in opposition to Senator Millard E. Tydings frequently and thus had "blackened out" Maryland's representation in the Senate.

Further, he said, Senator Radcliffe had done nothing to curb federal spending which, if continued, would bankrupt the nation. Bruce pledged himself to fight for greater federal economy should he be elected.

Wagner Act Foes Win Preliminary Victory in House

Members Will Have Chance To Vote on Many Amendments

Washington, April 19 (AP)—Legislators demanding sweeping revision of the Wagner Act won a major, preliminary victory today when the House Rules Committee approved procedure under which the House would have an opportunity to vote on dozens of amendments.

The committee turned down a plan to preclude consideration of any amendments other than the four recently approved by the labor committee. With only Chairman Sabath (D-Ill.) dissenting, it voted to send the labor committee's amendments to the House floor with the provision that the House could substitute for them, if it desired, the seventeen amendments proposed by a majority of the Smith committee—the special committee, headed by Rep. Smith (D-Va.), which investigated the national labor relations board. Other revisions also could be offered.

The committee's action cleared the way for consideration of Wagner act changes whenever House leaders give the word, but when that would be in doubt.

Chairman Norton (D-N.J.) of the labor committee, who had desired that the House take up her committee's amendments under procedure limiting debate and precluding other amendments, called today's action "a rule procedure" and referred to the rules committee's "high-handed way of doing things."

The labor committee's amendments would increase the labor board from three to five members, protect AFL craft unions in industrial plants, permit employers to ask the board for a collective bargaining election and preserve for one year valid employer-employee contracts.

The Smith committee's seventeen amendments included establishment of a new NLRB, separation of its judicial and administrative powers and a revamping of much of its present procedure.

Outfitted in everything from Norwegian ski suits to lumber jackets, they gave vivid accounts of their experiences.

Of how the Hardy and four other destroyers engaged six German destroyers in the first battle for Narvik; how the Hunter was sunk, probably with the loss of all hands; how the Hardy, badly hit, was beached and abandoned; how the 100-odd survivors swam ashore through a quarter-mile of icy water, and how these survivors maintained themselves in territory occupied by the Germans for days until finally they were picked up by a British ship.

Aged Texan Wins Right To Fight For Daughter's $400,000 Estate

By JOHN FERRIS

New York, April 19 (AP)—An 89-year old Texan, divorced by his wife nearly sixty years ago and regarded as "dead" by his wealthy, eccentric daughter who preferred dogs, won the right today to fight for a share of the daughter's $400,000 estate.

Surrogate James A. Foley said he was satisfied John F. Mulhall, of San Antonio, Tex., was the former husband of Mrs. Susan J. Mulhall of New York, and the father of the late Mrs. Isabel McHie, who died April 27, 1939, leaving the residue of her estate to The Seeing Eye, Inc., of Morristown, N. J., an institution which trains German shepherd dogs to lead the blind.

Candidates Spend 'Excessive' Sums, Committee Hears

Campaigns of Presidential Aspirants under Investigation

By RICHARD L. TURNER

Washington, April 19 (AP)—The committee created by the Senate to police the presidential campaign swung into action today upon the receipt of charges from "apparently reliable sources" that some presidential candidates were spending "excessive" sums of money.

The committee ordered an investigation but, in announcing its action, Chairman Gillette (D-Iowa) declined to name the candidates involved, or give any details beyond saying that the complaints all involved one political party.

Meanwhile, political developments bobbed up both here and elsewhere:

(1) Secretary Hull, with some emphasis, repeated a previous statement that he was not a candidate for anything.

(2) Chairman James A. Farley of the Democratic National Committee announced at New York that he would open the Democratic National Convention in his official capacity, and suggested that Senator Barkley of Kentucky and Speaker Bankhead would be good choices as keynote speaker and permanent chairman, respectively.

(3) James H. R. Cromwell, minister to Canada, formally announced his candidacy for the Senate from New Jersey as a supporter of President Roosevelt and the New Deal.

(4) Thomas E. Dewey formally entered the May 6 Maryland presidential preference primary. Since Senator Taft (R-O.) announced he would not run in that contest, no opposition was expected.

(5) President Roosevelt drafted a speech he would deliver at 10:45 p. m., Eastern Standard Time, tomorrow night to Jefferson Day banquets of young Democratic clubs throughout the country. The speech is to be broadcast from Warm Springs, Ga., by all major radio networks.

(6) Speaking at Charleston, West Virginia, Senator Taft said the election issues were domestic and that he thought there was no danger of the United States becoming involved in the war, at least before the election.

Farley's statement was considered of interest for its tacit announcement that, although he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination

Tydings Predicts Sweeping Victory For Sen. Radcliffe

Senior Senator Sees Two to One Majority for His Colleague

Frederick, Md., April 19 (AP)—A two-to-one popular majority for Senator George L. Radcliffe in the Democratic primary May 6 over his opponent, Howard Bruce, for the senatorial nomination, was forecast tonight by Senator Millard E. Tydings.

Tydings, who accompanied Radcliffe in his swing today through Frederick county, asserted that "neither widespread use of money, the promising of jobs, nor the flooding of the state with false propaganda can stem the Radcliffe tide."

He said "we concede Mr. Bruce only two counties" and "we are going to carry all six districts of Baltimore city beyond a shadow of a doubt."

Senator Tydings asked his hearers not to be misled by reports emanating from the Bruce headquarters that the state is for Mr. Bruce. It has been from the start overwhelmingly for Senator Radcliffe.

Radcliffe also addressed the mass meeting in the courthouse, after speaking earlier to a group of railroad workers in Brunswick. There he outlined support he had given railroad labor legislation in Washington.

Cruiser either Sunk or Badly Damaged; Tommies Leap into Sea from Ships

Action Close to Shore Confirms Reports of Landing of Many British Troops in Norway

(By The Associated Press)

Direct aerial bomb hits on two British transports and a cruiser off Norway's west coast yesterday (Friday) created a panic among Norway-bound Tommies, DNB, official German news agency, reported early today, (Saturday), while new naval warfare in the Skagerrak was indicated by heavy explosions heard on the Swedish coast.

DNB said heavy fire from convoying warships prevented determination whether the transports or cruiser were sunk, but contended all seemed heavily damaged, with British soldiers leaping into the sea to swim ashore.

The action, thus admittedly close inshore, tended to confirm other reports that the British expeditionary forces in Norway were being reinforced steadily.

With the line apparently drawn for a "do or die" battle around Trondheim fjord, significance was lent to an Allied pledge to cleanse Viking soil of "the filthy pollution of Nazi tyranny."

Neutral Nations Active

From their unwanted ringside seats at the extended European conflict, a number of neutral nations took new steps to save themselves from involvement.

Numerous members of the British and French colonies were leaving Budapest for fear that country was next on the German war list.

Although Hungarians discounted such reports as the fears of alarmists, government precautions were being taken. Searchlights swept the skies all night and air raid protection squads patrolled the streets.

Fragmentary reports from Norway said British forces were being increased hourly and indicated that a heavy collision was almost unavoidable in the region of Steinkjer, north of Trondheim near the head of the Trondheim fjord.

85,000 Germans in Norway

While the Germans reported they were driving up the Glommen river in the heart of southern Norway and expected to take the town of Elverum momentarily, a Norwegian official in London said 2,000 German soldiers were being flown into Norway daily and that total forces of the invader now neared 85,000.

Winston Churchill, first lord of the British admiralty and head man of the British war strategists, welcomed home the survivors of the destroyer Hardy, wrecked in the abortive raid on Narvik, Norway, April 10.

He told them and the crew of the damaged destroyer Eclipse that they were "the vanguard of the armies which we and our French allies will use during this summer to purke and cleanse the soil of the Vikings, the soil of Norway, from the filthy pollution of Nazi tyranny."

Allied determination also was signified by a unanimous vote of confidence which the French Chamber of Deputies gave to Premier Laval.

Opposes Dictators

"What matters more than anything else is that at the end of this war the superiority of power should rest unmistakably in the hands not of the dictatorships but of the free peoples so that it will be they and not the totalitarians who will determine the future."

Lord Lothian asserted the Allies were convinced that "in the end we are going to win, though not perhaps before the world has become a different place from what it is today."

German Trade Continues

The speaker declared "German trade continues and German agents are at work trying to defeat the blockade" and said it was of "essential importance everywhere, in-

Five Killed in Wreck of Crack Central Express

Lake Shore Limited Leaves Tracks at Little Falls, N. Y.

Little Falls, N. Y., April 19. (AP)—The Lake Shore limited, a crack New York Central express train, jumped the track about a half mile east of here tonight and five persons were reported killed.

First accounts of the accident, which occurred shortly before midnight, were fragmentary because the train carried communication lines down as it left its roadbed.

John Crowley, editor of the Little Falls Times who lives a few hundred yards from the scene, said approximately six cars left the tracks and estimated the dead at five. An estimated twenty persons were injured.

The train, one of the Central's fastest New York to Chicago units, left New York city at 6:30 p. m. tonight and ran out of Albany on time at 9:54. It was due to make a stop at Utica at 11:28.

The cause of the accident was not immediately known but witnesses on the scene said debris was strewn for hundreds of yards up the tracks. The train's high-powered engine leaped several yards from the tracks landing across route 5, main New York state east-west highway, blocking motor traffic.

A hurried call was sent to Utica, approximately thirty miles away, for ambulances and physicians.

Less Apprehension Over Italy's Place In Foreign Situation

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

Rome, April 19. (AP)—Apprehension over Italy's position in the European conflict subsided today as the Italian press modified somewhat the belittling tone of its pro-German treatment of war news.

Italian circles generally tended to minimize the tension which developed earlier this week with speculation as to Italy's readiness to enter the war immediately on Germany's side.

The authoritative editor Virginia Garza asked in Il Giornale d'Italia what had developed in Italy's attitude that was not already known. "Where is the Italian menace?" he queried.

He advised the British against "unwise maneuvers" and warned other nations to mind their own affairs and leave Italy in peace.

Panic Breaks Out On Two Transports

Berlin, April 20. (Saturday) (AP)—The German news agency, D.N.B., amplifying a previous report, early today reported that German air bombs of great size had scored direct hits on two British transports and one cruiser off the Norwegian coast Friday.

Panic broke out on the transports. D.N.B. said, and many British soldiers jumped overboard and tried to swim ashore.

"Great smoke clouds arising from the cruiser, together with large oil spots on the water and the stopping of the vessel indicated the cruiser was damaged severely."

Anti-aircraft fire from protecting ships prevented an exact determination of whether the stricken ships were sunk, the agency added.

New Naval Action Believed In Progress

Göteborg, Sweden, April 19. (AP)—Indications of new naval action in the Skagerrak came from offshore today when six heavy detonations, possibly caused by torpedoes, were heard here.

Buildings on the Swedish west coast rocked as if in an earthquake. The first of the explosions was heard at 5 a. m. and they continued until 10 a. m., when cannonading still was in progress. The successive explosions moved in a southerly direction.

American Student Youth Calls upon U. S. To Avoid War

Many Schools and Colleges Oppose Entering European Conflict

(By The Associated Press)

American student youth—thousands of them—rallied yesterday (Friday) behind the slogan "The Yanks Are Not Coming" in a "peace strike" protesting war and calling for the United States to remain out of the European conflict.

Sponsored by the "Youth Committee against War" and supported by seven national youth organizations and the United Student Peace Committee of eleven groups, the annual demonstration was described by some leaders as the largest in the history of the movement.

Many schools and colleges dismissed or postponed classes for campus meetings.

Two hundred white crosses—a grim reminder of Flanders fields of the World War—were set up on the University of Chicago campus and signs queried the passersby: "Will your name be here?"

Similar crosses were erected on the University of Minnesota campus Thursday night, but the next morning had disappeared. Officials said they were injurious to the grass. The students said they would protest.

At Columbia University, eighty-eight per cent of the 1,500 students polled by the Columbia Peace Committee voted against the entrance of the United States into the European war, while 81.8 per cent opposed aiding belligerents with armed force. About six per cent favored such aid and 12.1 had no opinion. America's participation in the conflict was favored by 6.5 and 4.7 were uncertain.

country, Czechoslovakia proper and Austria, respectively.

A police raid Tuesday midnight on Stoyadinovic's home produced documents which, authorities said, linked the former premier with Nazi "Trojan Horse" activity in Yugoslavia. It was considered possible some of his followers also would be interned. They are under police watch.

Raiders were made on the homes of many Germans living near the German frontier, and arms and documents were taken. The latter, police said, showed up the plot for an uprising of the German minority, to be timed with the entry into Yugoslavia of the German army.

The raids in this region, which has 40,000 Germans, were facilitated by discovery of a membership list of the Swabian-German cultural band, which the police say is pro-Nazi.

Italians Concentrating

Reports from the Italian frontier described, moreover, unusual activity among Italian troops, who now are to be seen in steel helmets. There have been other reports of German troop concentrations near the Yugoslav border.

In Turkey, sixty Germans were expelled today and the government denied foreigners the right to enter Turkish schools without special authorization from the ministry of education.

Broening Backers Predict Stampede

Declare He Will Sweep State against Ex-Governor Nice

Baltimore, April 19. (AP)—Headquarters of Former Mayor William F. Broening said today he will sweep the state in a "stampede" of balloting May 6 to name the Republican senatorial nominee.

The prediction was in reply to one from the camp of Former Gov. Harry W. Nice last night that Nice would carry everything except one district in Baltimore city.

A Broening backer, Paul Robertson, chairman of the Republican City Committee, said Nice simply was starting to "whistle in the dark."

Robertson said Broening was "assured" of ninety-five votes. Only seventy-five are needed to nominate.

From the claim by Nice and his supporters, he continued, "it would seem" that Republicans "all over the state are rejoicing and are going to show their deep appreciation (for leadership by the Nice camp) by flocking to the polls with enthusiasm to vote for Mr. Nice and his stooges x x x."

"This is a rash, illogical and irresponsible claim, and shows clearly that the jig is up. In desperation they are beginning to whistle in the dark, hoping to stimulate the low morale of their hopeless cause."

Churchill Scores

Churchill told the sailors and a crowd that filled the horse-guards' parade to welcome them. "It has played a notable, indeed an indispensable part in securing the safety of our country during the opening months of this hard and obstinate war."

But though Churchill spoke with assurance, there was less comfort for Britons in word brought from the northern front by a Norwegian official.

Germany, he declared, is pouring 2,000 men a day into Norway by plane—and neutral military attaches, who as early as last Sunday placed Nazi dispositions in that country at 60,000, now believe the German forces to be nearing 85,000. They stressed the ease with which the Reich can ferry troops to Norway by seaplane from its new bases in Denmark, and thus emphasized the need for speed in the combined British-Norwegian advance on Trondheim.

Victory in the battle for that port, he said, would be one of the richest prizes of the war. By gaining possession of Trondheim, the Allies could turn the tables on Germany with a base for operations against the Nazis in Denmark as well as against Germany's hitherto inviolate Baltic ports, these persons explained.

Trondheim is such an important position, they pointed out, that the Germans may even be content to dig in along a line extending eastward from Trondheim to the Swedish border without attempting to push further northward.

He was shown a copy of the divorce decree which his wife obtained in 1931.

"I sure didn't know that," he said in amazement. "I thought maybe it was some kind of separation, she wanted. Anyway, I never heard from her about it."

Mrs. Mulhall testified she last saw her husband about sixty years ago. Asked if she recognized Mulhall as the man who was her husband, she said it was difficult to tell after so many years and added that he didn't look like the man she married.

Ford Co. Accused Of Using Thugs To Block Union

Labor Board Examiner Reports on Month's Hearings

Washington, April 19. (AP)—A labor board trial examiner accused the Ford Motor Company today of "gathering together the most brutal, vicious and conscienceless thugs in its employ" to block unionization of Ford workers under the Wagner act.

The accusation was made by Examiner Robert N. Denham in a report of a month's hearing on labor difficulties at the Ford plant in Dallas, Texas. He recommended that the company reinstate two employees with back pay and notify individually all of its employees in the United States that it would "cease discouraging" union membership.

The recommendation that all Ford employees receive the notification was unprecedented in labor board affairs. The company employs in excess of 100,000 workers.

Denham's report, against which the company has twenty days to file exceptions, was sent to Dallas by airplane today and there served on Ford officials. It recites Dallas testimony bearing on charges that a so-called Ford "strong arm squad" engaged in assaults and intimidation to discourage union membership.

Summing up the evidence presented at the hearing, Denham said:

"Charges Brutal Beatings
"No case within the history of the board is known to the undersigned (Denham) in which an employer has deliberately planned and carried into execution a program of brutal beatings, whippings, and other manifestations of physical violence comparable to that shown by the uncontradicted and wholly credible evidence on which the findings are based."

"Blackjacks, loaded hose, cat-o-nine tails made of rubber stripping and electric light wire were among the weapons used by the Ford Motor Company's strong-arm squad."

"There was no limit of brutality to which this squad and those who were directing it were unwilling to go if necessary, for at one stage, even murder was planned."

Denham said that in the spring of 1937 when labor unions started organizing the automobile industry, the Ford company "was mobilizing every available force to accomplish the defeat of labor in that struggle."

"It realized," he continued, "that the only possibility of accomplishing that defeat among its own employees would lie in sowing the seeds of distrust in unions, on the one hand, and the fear of reprisals on the other, as the most effective way of preventing an inclination on the part of the employees to become union advocates."

Denham contended the company "sowed the seeds of distrust" by distributing its celebrated pamphlet, "Ford Gives Viewpoint on Labor," to impress its employees throughout the country that the company was unwilling "to permit its employees to engage in labor organization and collective bargaining."

As a second step, he declared, the company sought to establish the "fear element" by gathering together the most brutal, vicious and conscienceless thugs in its employ x x x and setting this gang x x x upon any person pointed out to them as a CIO organizer, member, advocate or sympathizer, to be beaten, whipped, tarred and feathered or otherwise brutally assaulted x x x."

Denham said that the Ford company for the most part offered no evidence to controvert circumstances described by witnesses in the Dallas hearing.

The attorney for the motor concern during the five-week NLRB hearing which resulted in today's report by Trial Examiner Robert N. Denham said he and co-attorney Neth L. Leachman would file exceptions to the findings and recommendations.

British Soldiers Arriving Hourly In Norway Ports

Decisive Battle with Germans Momentarily Expected

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS

Stockholm, April 19. (AP)—Fragmentary reports from Norway said tonight that British reinforcements were arriving every hour in the Norwegian coastline, north of German-held Trondheim and reiterated that a decisive battle seemed to be shaping up between German troops and Norwegian defenders joined by the British expeditionary forces.

Some Swedish correspondents, reporting through Storlien, railway village just inside Sweden, said the British reinforcements were arriving along a fifteen-mile line from Steinkjer, at the head of tortuous Trondhjem fjord, north to Namsos. All circumstances, said these reports, showed that a decisive encounter seemed unavoidable in the vicinity of Steinkjer.

Reports that British officers had reached the vicinity of Hamar, sixty miles north of Oslo and far southeast of the Trondhjem area, seemed to indicate they had been flown inland from points on the coast where the British had secured a foothold. Hamar itself was reported now in German hands, however.

Telephone reports to the Swedish news agency said that town, which the Norwegian government made its first headquarters after fleeing Oslo, was taken by advancing Germans Thursday evening.

This information bore out previous reports that Hamar itself would be abandoned and that defense lines would be established a short distance north, in the direction of Elverum, which lies about eighteen miles to the north and east.

It was reported that the Hamar police put up posters and placards asking the populace to vacate the town and keep cool. These notices, it was reported, were pasted over posters put up only a few days ago saying Norwegian forces were protecting the town and would do their utmost to hold it.

this year, and said these deficits would continue under New Deal philosophy until the country adopted the attitude of "why not pay with paper money?"

"When that occurs," he said, "you break down the whole structure and when that occurs you go on to something else."

"That's what brought on the totalitarian states in Europe."

The candidate, who like other major presidential aspirants of both parties, told the life underwriters that the pending bill to regulate investment trusts "is an excellent precedent for federal regulation of insurance companies."

"The abuses in your industry are not as bad as those in investment trusts," he went on. "You are already subject to state regulations as most investment trusts are not. But these are minor differences to those who yearn to extend federal power."

The Ohio senator asserted the issue of 1940 is "what kind of a government do the people want?"

He discounted the "danger of our getting into war" before the general election and said:

"Instead of foreign affairs, the question this fall is what kind of government is the New Deal giving us?"

"You have a government today which seems to be inspired with meddling with everything and everybody in the world."

He attacked "bureaucratic control" of agriculture, business and industry, asserting that if "government continues to expand at the top you are going to remove all the safeguards of the constitution."

None of the major Republican aspirants is entered in the May 14 primary in West Virginia.

Here to address a state meeting of Life Insurance Underwriters, Taft was the honor guest at a luncheon given by National Committee chairman Walter S. Hallahan and State Chairman Robert H. C. Kay, who accorded the same courtesy to Thomas E. Dewey's managers a few weeks ago.

Charging that the government "has meddled in everything domestic," Taft declared that now it is "itching to meddle in the affairs of Europe."

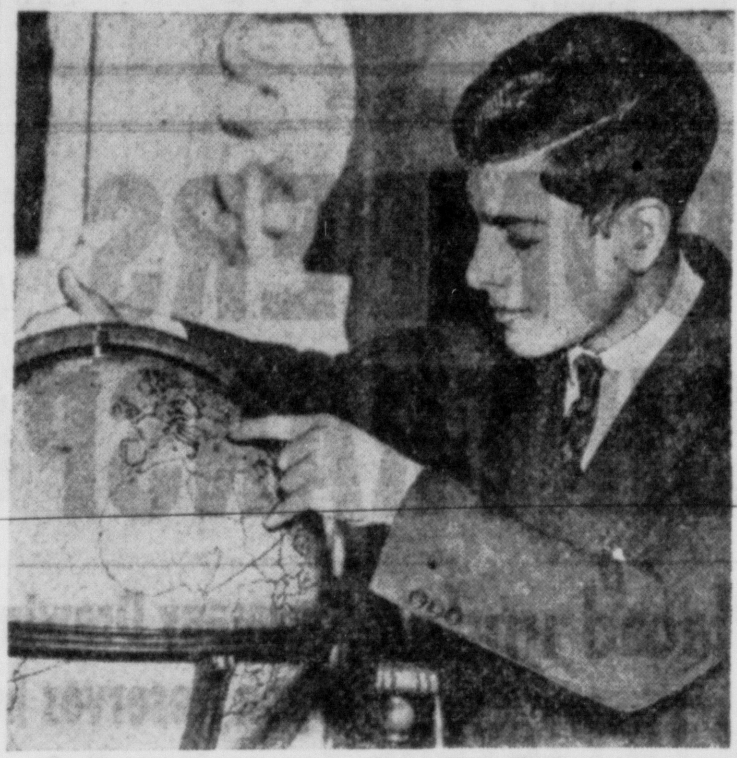

"Senior officials of the Ford Motor Company in Dearborn knew of, helped plan and subsequently approved the program of terrorism."

"Persecution", Lawyer For Company Says

Dallas, April 19. (AP)—Gabe P. Allen said tonight a labor board accusation that the Ford Motor Company had gathered together "brutal, vicious and conscienceless thugs" to block unionization of workers was "just a conclusion and wild inference" in an effort to carry out the board's policy of "persecuting" the company.

The attorney for the motor concern during the five-week NLRB hearing which resulted in today's report by Trial Examiner Robert N. Denham said he and co-attorney Neth L. Leachman would file exceptions to the findings and recommendations.

Editors Deplore Action of Judges In Contempt Cases

See an Unwarranted Assault by Courts on Bill of Rights

Washington, April 19. (AP)—After hearing an editor's demand for a curb on court contempt powers, the American Society of Newspaper Editors deplored today the "tendency of some judges to extend the conception of contempt of court into an unwarranted assault on the bill of rights."

Passage of the resolution followed a suggestion by Ralph Coghlan, editorial page editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, that judges be stripped of the right to punish summarily for contempt, except for offenses committed in the presence of the court.

Praise Correspondents

The editors also saluted American foreign correspondents who, they declared, are giving newspaper readers "the best information on world affairs available to any people anywhere," in spite of handicaps, hardships and censoring.

Coghlan was held in contempt and sentenced to twenty days imprisonment because of the Post-Dispatch's criticism of the decision of Judge Thomas J. Rowe, Jr., dismissing an extortion charge against Edward M. Brady, Missouri state representative. Coghlan's appeal now is pending.

He told the editors that if his conviction were upheld, it might "prove to be only preliminary to a concerted, nationwide campaign to infringe upon the freedom of the press."

Hear Story of Huey Long

From James M. Thomson, publisher of the New Orleans Item-Tribune, the editors heard the story of the Huey Long dictatorship recounted, along with the observation that it could just as well have happened in New York, Illinois, or any other state, and finally collapsed only because of a free press.

Tom Wallace, editor of the Louisville (Ky.) Times, was elected president of the society succeeding Donald J. Sterling of the Oregon Journal, Portland, Ore.

Germany Drawing

promise to force the war to a decision during 1940 that business and industry are being combed systematically for machinery and reserve stocks not needed now.

Funk Asks Rationing
Funk, addressing the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Reichsbank, therefore stressed not only the "rationing of essential needs" but also the restriction of production of consumers' goods, progressive reduction of stocks and refraining from investing in replacements.

Economic bin-scraping, in other words, is one of Germany's most effective methods of financing the war.

In business circles it is heard more and more that the economic ministry is about to decree the scrapping of all machinery lying idle against the time when peacetime production of consumers' goods can be resumed, the machinery to be made available for munitions.

Observers suggested that if this rumor were well founded it would seem that Funk took the occasion diplomatically to prepare the public mind for it.

Funk further left no doubt that all available liquid cash somehow must flow into Germany's war chest.

Nazi-Rumanian Trade Pact Will Be Signed Today

German Wheat Purchases To Continue as Before Embargo

Bucharest, April 19. (AP)—Negotiation of a new German-Rumanian trade payment treaty was concluded tonight and an agreement is scheduled to be signed Saturday, it was learned.

Germany is to receive grain, customs facilities and her wheat purchases are to continue on scale in effect prior to the Rumanian embargo on wheat ports to the Reich.

The agreement is to be signed by Dr. Karl Ciodius, German economic expert who heads the mission which has been negotiating here, and Rumanian officials.

The treaty is to operate for a period of five years, with a provision for extension as well as Germany purchasing but will not concern the German occupied section of Poland.

Further details were not immediately available.

Mrs. Roosevelt Hostess To D.A.R. Delegates

Washington, April 19. (AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, who read from the daughters of the American revolution last spring because of Marian Anderson incident, today received with a smile and handshake the delegates to its forty-first Continental Congress.

Standing alongside her at the White House reception was Henry M. Robert, Jr., of Ann Arbor, Md., president general of the D.A.R.

It was the first time these women had been together since Mrs. Roosevelt dropped her membership after the organization declined to rent its constitution for a benefit concert at which Marian Anderson, noted negro contralto, was to sing.

Prior to adjourning their convention, the D.A.R. endorsed legislation to increase the army and navy declaring:

"Events in the world today make peace in the western hemisphere depends essentially on national defense to maintain law and order."

another. That, he said, appeared to be the only claim for Radcliffe reelection—and this despite junior senator's failure to participate in any federal legislation.

Bruce and O'Connor spoke before a crowd of about 500, loudspeakers carrying the speeches outside. Additional scores unable to enter the hall. Accompanying party was Harding P. Tull, Somerset county Democratic leader, conferred with county watermen Bruce's interests.

LILLIBET: the Next-in-Line for England's Throne Is 14

TOMORROW is the 14th birthday of Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary, who will become queen of England if her royal parents do not have a son. In the palace of

of a nation fighting another world war it won't be such a pleasant birthday for the girl who has been trained for a royal destiny since her tiny pram days. Here is a look at her life:

AT FOUR, Lillibet's training in manners and public appearances is well under way, supervised by a pre-eminent authority, "Grand-mama" Queen Mary herself. Here teacher and pupil leave a royal tournament.

AT EIGHT, the Princess is well along in her lessons at riding. An hour's riding every day in Windsor Great Park, under the watchful eye of a royal groom, has been part of her arduous regimen. Elizabeth is pre-eminently an outdoor girl—she enjoys golfing and angling as much as she does riding.

AT ELEVEN, Elizabeth gets a foretaste of what may be in store for her, in posing for this official coronation picture with the new King and Queen and her little sister, Princess Margaret Rose.

AT THIRTEEN, the Princess has become quite accustomed to public appearances. Here she bestows a trophy at an International Horse show in London. Elizabeth resembles her father, has her mother's robust appetite and the backward flip of the wrist in answering public salutes that Queen Mary made famous.

A YEAR AGO she looked like this on her birthday, after her morning ride. There'll probably be another party tomorrow, but more quiet than her others, and then the Princess will turn to knitting for the soldiers.

C. I. O. Victorious In G. M. Election

Detroit, April 19. (AP)—The climax of a year-long dispute over bargaining in General Motors Corp. plants was given the United Automobile Workers (CIO) a decisive victory today over their chief rivals, the United Automobile Workers (UAW).

More than 120,000 General Motors employees in sixty plants voted Wednesday in the largest representation poll ever held by the National Labor Relations Board.

The complete tabulation of results tonight showed:

UAW-CIO won bargaining rights in forty-nine plants, including the largest units in the far-flung General Motors system, but challenged losses in one small Detroit plant might reduce the figure to forty-eight.

Relative strength of the CIO and APL industrial unions in General Motors is indicated by the total vote for them in the fifty-eight plants in which they competed. The totals: UAW-CIO 84,024; UAW-APL 25,911; neither union 13,919.

The elections were to be determined bargaining choices for individual plants, but the corporation agreed to negotiate with each union on issues common to all the plants won by that union. On this basis the UAW-CIO would negotiate questions common to the forty-nine plants it won.

Difference in domestic and foreign costs of production is no longer a prime factor in tariff-making, according to testimony of State department experts in hearings on trade agreement legislation.

American's Mine with Ears Is Planned to Swim to Prey

Inventor Leslie Crosby gives his model robot mine a try-out in the Springfield Y. M. C. A. pool.

AP Feature Service

Springfield, Mass.—A robot mine with two ears to guide it to a target has been tested here successfully.

fully—in model form. The inventor, Leslie L. Crosby, says he has spent around $200 to develop his swimming-pool model, a four-foot metal cylinder a foot in diameter.

The cylinder is of galvanized iron, the head is copper and the tail end is steel.

The inventor claims the robot mine could be anchored on the bottom of the sea in such a way that it could not be picked up by mine sweepers.

In the head are two selective frequency ears, activated by a series of mechanical and electrical filters contained in the hull. Vibrations of a ship's propellers or turbines, the inventor says, would start up the mechanism of the mine, releasing it from the sea bottom and sending it towards its objective at a controllable speed of between 20 and 35 miles an hour. The frequency ears control the motors and the rudder mechanism. The robot mine would explode after contact with the target.

Crosby says that, where it now takes hundreds of mines to cover a mile, it would take comparatively few of his robot mines. He says the robot could be launched a great distance from a predetermined spot for anchorage and that it could be controlled at the will of a distant operator.

The model is powered by storage batteries and motors within its hull which are connected to propellers at the stern. A full sized model, which Crosby says, would be about the size of a standard torpedo, would be powered by compressed air.

Prompt Pay Out Of Kentucky Derby

Louisville, Ky., April 19. (AP)—Prompt Pay won't pay off in the Kentucky Derby.

It was the second of Woolf's four derby nominees knocked out of the picture because of an injury. Prompt Pay, son of Inco, which also sired Lawrin, winner of the 1938 Derby for Woolf, was ordered rested for two weeks, the Kansas City turfman announced after a conference with two veterinarians—Dr. Edward M. Lang and Dr. T. A. Fowler.

This Man Really Helps His City To Grow

AP Feature Service

Phenix City, Ala. — The mayor of this east Alabama city may be pardoned for pointing with pride to the population growth of the last forty-eight years. As a family physician, he has delivered 6,650 babies to Phenix City mothers.

Dr. Ashby Floyd fixed the figure during a recent meeting. He's still active both as mayor and as doctor, and the figure may have grown by the time this is printed.

Back in 1892, Phenix City was a hamlet. In 1914, when Floyd first became mayor, the population was around 4,500. Now it is estimated at nearer 17,000. If all the Floyd-delivered babies were still here, they would account for more than half the increase.

Desperate Moves To Purchase The Election Seem Afoot

WHAT appears to be one of the most brazen attempts to buy the coming election with the taxpayers' dollars, which exceeds in its audacity many of those in kind hitherto made, is that by which executive authority is asked for spending all of the $975,000,000 appropriation for WPA for the next fiscal year during eight months of the year instead of the twelve months.

It is no wonder that a member of the House of Representatives arises to demand the meaning of this attempt and to inquire whether it represents another campaign slush fund—whether it means padding another half a million people on the pay rolls at public expense just prior to the election. The president explains the need of the authority on the ground that the uncertainties of employment will make it necessary. But this seems a pretty thin excuse.

There is another thing that demonstrates the desperation of the New Dealers, in this connection. It is the move undertaken to force early consideration of the WPA appropriation bill in face of the agreement to let it come in as usual at the end of the congressional session. The information comes from Washington that the WPA probe report is due before the appropriation, that it will prove to be quite malodorous and that the move to get the appropriation passed before schedule is designed to get the money in hand before the disclosures break. The Senate seems to have been taken over with the idea but House members are, graciously, balking at it.

If this is the case, it appears that the disclosures are to be such that, when revealed, they will force a curtailment of the appropriation, if not something in addition. But a bird in the hand is always worth two in the bush.

Both moves are shameful and provide further emphasis of the need for giving the national capital a thorough housecleaning.

Sense about Silver Might Give Some to Mexico

NOTHING MUCH can result from the United States' new attitude toward Mexico because of its seizure of American oil properties except for Mexico to knuckle. If Secretary Hull really means business and now will demand compensation from Mexico for its communication of American property, Cardenas, or whoever is in charge below the Rio Grande, will have to come across.

Perhaps Mexico will be influenced by contemplation that the provision for the purchase of Mexican silver adopted some time ago by Washington can be repealed. This would leave Mexico with a lot of surplus silver to be sold for what it is worth, which is considerably below the figure at which the United States Treasury is taking it. The only reason so far advanced why the United States extended this silver purchasing favor to Mexico was that it was in the hope that Mexico would feel so grateful it would extend kindly trade treatment to Americans. Instead, Mexico has been making mince-meat of American properties down there ever since.

If the course of hesitation which previously has characterized the Roosevelt administration in this matter is now cast aside a reckoning will not be long in materializing to the advantage of the United States.

Inflation and Repudiation Come Closer and Closer

WHAT the money situation of the world is coming to no one knows, but statistically the outlook is appalling. All the principal powers are borrowing money hand over fist and ultimately will be face to face with a terrible reckoning.

At the beginning of this war German taxation was 26.2 per cent of national income compared to 8.9 per cent at the beginning of the World War. The French rate is 23.3 per cent against 16.2 per cent twenty-five years ago, and in Britain it is 21.7 against 11.1 per cent.

In the United States, although the nation is not at war, taxes are 22.4 per cent of national income compared to seven per cent in 1914. The situation in countries like Japan, which are small and poorly endowed with natural resources, is even worse.

This would not be so bad if taxes came anywhere near meeting expenses. But everybody knows how they have fallen short in the United States. And Britain is borrowing now at the rate of $5,000,000,000 a year and will probably borrow $10,000,000,000 annually when the war reaches its height.

In view of high taxes and rising debts, the prospect of ultimate inflation and debt repudiation is getting stronger all the time.

The First Lady Becomes A Minority of One

MRS. ROOSEVELT has achieved the dubious distinction of becoming a minority of one, according to the New York Herald Tribune, by making public avowal that she does not favor amendment of the Wagner act.

"She did not elucidate or qualify," says the Herald Tribune, "merely making the flat statement in answer to a query from the floor when she was addressing the Southern Conference for Human Welfare at Chattanooga. Possibly she didn't realize that this puts her virtually in a minority of one in this highly controversial subject. The C. I. O., the A. F. of L., the special Smith committee, the regular Labor committee of the House, and Senator Wagner himself, not to mention the whole of industry, have asked that the act be amended. Even her husband has hinted that he thought it might be improved. Of course, they differ decidedly in their recommendations, but all want to see the thing changed. Apparently they are all out of step but our First Lady.

"This will hardly disconcert her, one imagines. The rhythm of her march toward the social salvation of the country is entirely her own. And yet, sometimes, seemingly, it gives her pause. At the same meeting she declined to comment on the Dies committee, though two speakers previously had attacked the committee bitterly. Could it be that after her experience with the Youth Congress in Washington she is not so sure of her opinion of the Dies committee, or perhaps of the wisdom of expressing it? And may we hope that a similar caution will overtake her eventually when it comes to discussing the Wagner act? Just a slight deference to the possibility that the country as a whole might be right and she wrong in a controversy of the sort would seem becoming in any one—surely not less so in the wife of the president."

Perhaps the agitation that obtains throughout the country over the subject will bring about this happy eventuality, as the movement apparently does not appear to be losing any of its momentum.

New Deal Peace Costlier Than the World War

NEW DEAL PEACE is costing the people of the United States as much as it cost them for their part in the World War.

Take the total federal expenditures for the four years, 1916 to 1919, which include the heavy current costs for the World War participation, and compare them with the government expenditures for the last four years, 1936 to 1939. What do we find? It is incredible, but true, but the two four-year totals are almost exactly the same—thirty-four billions each. And this is so notwithstanding the eighteen and a half billions spent in 1919 alone.

We are not at war today, nor have we been during the last four years, but the New Deal is spending on the same prodigious scale as when we were.

We can recall, painfully, the big task of clearing out of the World War; but, lamentably, the people do not seem to comprehend what they will have to experience in clearing out of the Roosevelt peace period, because the spending is still going on and the huge public debt is still piling up.

Cheese rolling, we read, has become a popular sport in Italy. It must take a hardy Italian with a heavy head cold to sit through an entire limburger tournament.

The Browser

By MARSHALL MASLIN

On the jacket of Louis Paul's novel "A Passion for Privacy" (Knopf) is a photograph of Mr. Paul, and a very neat introduction it is, indeed, to the man who wrote the book. A stout fellow with a high forehead, topped by thinning hair, a broad grinning mouth, keen eyes and an air, altogether, of laughing geniality at the world. An amateur musician who is sorry he never learned to tap dance, he hates "phony modernist painters" and is tolerant of bad movies. Just the lad who would be writing the kind of books he does write—and Browser liked him on sight and always chuckles at his superficially cockeyed novels.

"A Passion for Privacy," in the words of the author, is "a light satirical comedy." Paul stars with the Lamont Redfern, a family so wealthy it could easily live on the income from its investments. (I mean the income from the income). Redfern is interested only in his collection of antique typewriters. Otherwise he has a passion for privacy. Mrs. Redfern is merely Mrs. Redfern.

They have an intelligent daughter Constance, who has taken to reading Marx and Darwin and has quietly fallen in love with Johnny Cantor, who grew up from the slums and has "acquired a nervous need to dedicate himself to the cause of the exploited classes." And there's the son, Monty, who is much interested in horses and polo and has genuine physical charm. "Though he drank too much, this was more in the nature of a sacrifice to class uniformity than to personal weakness."

Monty falls in love with Alice Jones, chorus girl and daughter of the Redfern's cook—who raises the chickens over the marriage until Monty bribes her into friendliness by buying her the contract of a heavyweight fighter. (She had always wanted to be a prizefighter's manager). So they marry and go to Niagara Falls on their honeymoon and the reporters pursue them—because it makes a heck of a good news story, doesn't it?—and Monty gets so furious that he is roused from his cerebral languor to plot revenge against a low gent named Frankenstein who owns a newspaper that always pursues the upper crust folk. So he starts a competing newspaper with the help of Constance and Cantor and gives Mr. Frankenstein a fine run for his money. Since the Browser is no Louis Paul he is not up to playing "A Passion for Privacy" in the gay satirical vein that is Mr. Paul's. You must take his word for it that reading Paul is a continuous delight.

The Browser wonders if there is a single professor in any American college or university who has not, by this time, read George Stewart's "Doctor's Oral" (Random House). It was published some time ago but the Browser has by some odd quirk only just gotten around to reading it—and enjoying it. It is one day in the life of a not-extraordinary young man who is going up for his oral examination preliminary to writing his doctor's thesis in a university graduate school.

Dr. Stewart insists that the characters and the university pictured are imaginary also that the examination is imaginary and "need not even be considered typical of such examinations." Nevertheless, since he is on the faculty of the University of California, he has drawn upon that school for many details. For example, there's the remark of the professor about a Dr. Martinez who is very popular with the students and younger faculty members. Someone says, "There sits Martinez like a giant surrounded by pygmies" and another professor remarks, "Yes, take giant real pygmies." (At U. C. the remark is sometimes attributed to the late Arthur Ryder about the late Henry Morse Stephens, whose memory is still precious to the Browser).

Some malice, much snarled understanding and deep appreciation of honest scholarship—these are elements from which "Doctor's Oral" was compounded. And there's no more space left for Marshall Maslin.

Glittering Circus Carries Sadness

BY EDWIN C. HILL

The circus—praise be!—is back in Madison Square Garden, its springboard, so to speak, for the long trek across country this spring and summer to the coast. The calliope squalls and booms as the newest spectacle of the Greatest Show on Earth unfolds to audiences enthralled. "Bigger and better than ever," says young John Ringling North, the circus boss; but of course that's true every year.

There's a fellow named Alfred Court who is putting on a new animal act—a hair-raiser, with polar bears, tigers, Himalayan bears, a lion, three spotted leopards, jaguars, pumas, Siberian snow leopards, Great Dane dogs and I know not what besides, all staged under a fierce spotlight in a blacked out area. It's a swell act—the most thrilling of the kind ever put on.

The circus opens with a pageant. "The Return of Marco Polo"—a grand, glittering, gorgeous galaxy of feminine beauty and manly strength, not forgetting the Strange People, as the freaks call themselves, the forty great elephants rolling along, holding each other's tails and all the other thrilling creatures that make the kids yell with glee.

Melancholy Funster

And Emmett Kelly will be there, a sad-faced zany about all Kelly does is to look sad. But you never saw anybody in your life look sadder. All the ills of the world are on his shoulders and reflect in his pen. His ragged mantle symbolizes man's unhumanity to man. It takes him forty minutes to make up. He makes a fire but it gives no warmth. He sweeps but the dust eludes his room. The world is a futile cosmos; a ballroom for the mischievous, pin-pricking child. All he can do is go jump in his tears. He is known as Melancholy Kelly—it is a rainbow title. They say he's the best clown since Joe Grimaldi and Paul Fratellini. Although to my notion the greatest clown we ever knew is Charlie Chaplin.

I wonder why all clowns are a melancholy lot. But it seems to be so. A few years ago, in Paris, I saw the four Fratellini give an excellent performance. Little Manuel Fratellini, only seven, Paul's son, led a clown jazz band made up of himself, his father and two uncles. The next night Paul Fratellini and his two brothers gave a special show for 900 orphans, children whose fathers had died for France on the battlefield.

The 900 boys and girls had lived for weeks in excited anticipation, and the Fratellinis did not disappoint them. How those clowns laughed! The show ended. Nine hundred sleepy heads dreamed happily of a night never to be forgotten. And Paul Fratellini went home to a little flower-covered coffin in which rested the body of his little seven-year-old son, Manuel, who had died that very afternoon.

The story is told of the quiet-spoken, sad-faced individual who went to a psychiatrist to ask for help. "I suffer," he said, "from habitual melancholy. I can't seem to get any joy out of life. Can you advise me what to do?" The mental specialist replied confidently: "Oh yes, be gay and happy people as much as possible. Get a laugh out of life. I have it! Go to see the world's greatest and funniest clown, Joe Grimaldi." The patient replied slowly: "But—I am Joe Grimaldi." —Copyright, 1940 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Honest Debate Is Out

From the Johnstown, Pa., Democrat

The new code manual for radio broadcast prohibits the purchase of time for the "presentation of controversial issues" except for "political broadcasts during campaigns and the public forum regularly presented as a series of fair-minded discussion—resting wholly with the broadcasting station or network."

This means that except during political campaigns there can be no honest debate over the air. "Controversial subjects" are out. Such is the theory. However, the department of Agriculture is to be permitted to go on the air with its clever pleas for policies that are actually highly controversial. All government bureaus will be permitted to say nice things about themselves—but they must not say anything that is not nice about anyone or anything else. Why should they? The air is to be filled with pleas to use some sort of cutie soap, with drive and draw from government sources—all in terms of fulsome praise. It will be permissible to defend the administration if the defense is so worded it involves no criticism of those who disagree.

Under the rulings of the Federal Communications Commission, the Father Coughlins, the General Johnstones and the Boake Carters will all be ruled off the air. The radio—except during political campaigns—will offer only stuffed shirt discussions. Well, the press is at least free—as yet. And as long as the press can deal in rough and tumble fashion with men, events and opinions the radio should, perhaps, be permitted to simmer along and sell soap.

Russian-Japanese Mutual Distrust Is Viewed as Helpful Factor for Allies

Still Voting Republican

From the Cincinnati Times-Star

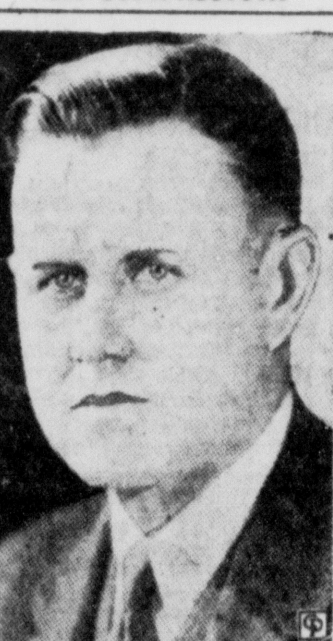

Under the mist of so-called national surveys of public opinion and the froth of so-called presidential preference primaries which blind nobody, a steady current is running and gathering momentum as it proceeds. It carries the actual votes of Americans for members of Congress in special district elections held when seats are made vacant by the death of incumbents.

In Nebraska the current was like a river moving toward flood stage. It first showed itself in Iowa some months ago when a Republican representative succeeded another Republican by a larger proportion of the total vote. It was rather stronger in February in two Ohio district elections, when a Republican captured a Democratic seat and another Republican succeeded a Republican by a larger proportion of the total vote. In Nebraska—well, here it is in figures.

The eleven counties in the First district sent a Democrat to Congress in 1932 with a majority of almost 20,000. In 1934 with a majority of over 10,000. In 1936 with a majority of almost 9,000. In 1938, when Republicans gained seven seats in the House, the district defeated the Democratic incumbent and gave the Republican candidate a majority of 349 votes. On Tuesday his Republican successor was elected by a majority of perhaps 7,000 votes.

Three of the four Republican victories in these special elections were in predominantly rural districts. They confirm the opinion of experienced observers that the agricultural states have had more than enough of the New Deal. Incidentally, they must reflect in some degree the internal resentments and technical helplessness of the Democratic party under the dog-in-the-manger policy of its chief. So far as these elections, necessarily scattering but quite consistent in their trend, provide a signboard for the future they indicate that a strongly Republican House will be elected in November, and very likely a Republican president.

ON COMMISSION!

P. A. Frye, President of the Louisiana State Public Service Commission, will announce that he will accept a southerner to fill the present vacancy on the Interstate Commerce Commission. P. A. Frye of Louisiana is the logical nominee. Frye now is executive secretary of the Louisiana public service commission.

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Our state department cordially dislikes the idea of a Japanese-controlled regime in eastern China, recently proclaimed under the nominal leadership of Wang Ching-wei. In to see why Comrade Stalin doesn't care to become too deeply involved in western Europe.

Stalin probably is quite right in his belief that Japan would attack him at the first good opportunity. Such opportunity would present itself if he were preoccupied against the European Allies in northern China, which still Sweden and Norway, and perhaps the Japanese naval forces along his own Arctic coast.

To sum up, from the standpoint of the United States, Britain, France and other countries which have large stakes in the Orient and which do not want Russia pushing any farther to the westward, Japan and Wang, on the one hand, and Russia on the opposite hand, offset one another very handsily.

Chiang Kai-Shek of Chiang Kai-Shek, which still Sweden and Norway, and perhaps the Japanese naval forces along his own Arctic coast.

It's easily explainable. Nobody doubts that the Japanese plan is to crowd the Occidental countries' influence out of Asia. Britain and France have even better reasons than Uncle Sam for opposing the Japanese program, because they have territorial possessions in the Orient, and they foresee that the Japanese presently will be threatening them.

Our interests are commercial only. Of course, we don't want our commercial interests interfered with, either. Still, that wouldn't be as bad as having actual colonies taken away from us, which is what Japan evidently contemplates in Britain's and France's cases.

Japan versus Russia

All the same, the western powers are under a certain sort of obligation to the Japanese for diverting Russia from participation in the strife on their own side of the war front.

Russia would be a big bother to the Allies if it went whole-heartedly into the Germans' fight against the Allies. It might ultimately become a danger to Uncle Samuel. Its program manifestly is to get, if it can, control of the whole Scandinavian northern peninsula, making the Soviets formidable in the Atlantic. That would hit in our direction. It wouldn't be immediate, but strategists see on to the future.

We're an Atlantic-Pacific country. It's a nuisance to have both costs to consider. German possibilities fret us to the eastward. Japanese possibilities toward the west. To have another country annoying us from both points of the compass would be a distinct pest.

No, we're not worried about Russia at present—but subsequently?

A Buffer Country

What we need is what diplomats call a "buffer country."

The Japanese may be totalitarian, but their government isn't Communist—which it doesn't want to be, but Russia is.

Now, I don't know that Chiang Kai-Shek is a Communist. But Comrade Stalin thinks he is. Therefore, Moscow inclines somewhat toward Chiang and has been helping him more or less with supplies as it can get to him very inconveniently, due to primitive transportation facilities. By the same token, the Soviets are vigorously opposed to Wang, who, at Tokyo's suggestion, has noisily proclaimed his hostility to the Communist campaign he asserts that Chiang is waging.

The Russians are extremely suspicious of the Japanese, also. They're traditionally unfriendly to the latter, and just now their belief is that the Japanese aim at gobbling at least a sizable part of Siberia. Indeed, there was Russo-

Japanese fighting along their border only lately.

Weak Truce

Not long ago a sort of an apology for a truce was patched up between Russia and Japan, but it, noticed under the auspices of the nominal leadership of Wang Ching-wei. In to see why Comrade Stalin doesn't care to become too deeply involved in western Europe.

Stalin probably is quite right in his belief that Japan would attack him at the first good opportunity. Such opportunity would present itself if he were preoccupied against the European Allies in northern China, which still Sweden and Norway, and perhaps the Japanese naval forces along his own Arctic coast.

To sum up, from the standpoint of the United States, Britain, France and other countries which have large stakes in the Orient and which do not want Russia pushing any farther to the westward, Japan and Wang, on the one hand, and Russia on the opposite hand, offset one another very handsily.

Forty-eight Homes Wanted

From the Christian Science Monitor

Taking as its keynote, "Economy begins at home," the Boston Chamber of Commerce combines self-sacrifice with wisdom in advising Massachusetts to take the initiative in the country by refraining from demands on the Federal Government for new public works.

This rare renunciation of easy money is based on the conviction of the Chamber's Federal tax experts that the present spending for public works is excessive. They also point out that pious protests against the vast expenditures in general mean nothing if local appeals continue everywhere. And finally, they feel that if a start toward government economy in this field is ever to come, some specific community must make it. So, while it is hard to turn the back on Santa Claus, the Boston men recommend, "Let's do it ourselves, right here in our own State."

It is such self-restraint and concern for the public welfare that makes democracy workable. The Boston plea for economy at home, before other States do likewise, comes naturally from a city which has saved so liberally to the founding of the Nation.

Economy in America should have many homes—forty-eight if they be counted by States.

Quotable Quotes

By United States Senator Edwin C. Johnson, Democrat, of Colorado

If the president intends to go through with it and accept the nomination, no one can very well complain, because smart politics are played in that cold-blooded way; but if at the eleventh hour he should abandon the scuttled Democratic ship, he must accept the responsibility for the disaster which is so obviously and relentlessly bearing down upon her. However, the president, perhaps with the noblest of intentions, has stymied Democracy's most dependable sounding board, the primaries, and he has harpooned and torpedoed other candidates for the presidency until now on the very eve of the election the majority party is marked-gobbling at least a sizable part of time, floundering in confusion and trailing in public esteem.

Patent Subsidy Fund Is Urged

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Washington, April 19.—Of all the tens of thousands of patent applications that flood the government, about one out of a hundred is worth the paper on which it is written. But in the infinitesimal minority among inventors, there are a few who come now and then a Whitney, a Morse, an Edison, a Marconi, a Wright or a DeForest.

Perhaps other men with ideas that are valuable were never able to manifest them. The worth of an invention is only part of its cost. The inventor, hardly any gadget worked out, the unsupervised defects worked out, they must be adapted to practical commercial use. These processes are now tedious as the invention. They usually involve more time, delay, and appointment and much more money than the conception.

Requires Venture Capital

That takes what you call "venture capital," which is a short way of saying a long purse, an ideal vision and the gambling spirit of Champagne Charlie. Our government attitude and taxing system have squeezed this kind of "Bell Million-Gates" almost out of existence. Yet, he was as necessary a cog in our machine of progress as the inventors.

He was a combination of practical hard sense, restless ambition and commercial experience and aptitude. His replacement is an absolute necessity to our continued improvement. I would prefer some return to our traditional principle as would restore him to our national life. Since that does not seem likely, we ought to provide a synthetic substitute to avoid stagnation and one-half the life of a nation.

Successful in France

I haven't checked this exact amount from certain second-hand experts, but my information is that the French republic has done this with some success. The idea is based on a commission to examine inventions that seem to warrant development. Within modest limits this is finally a shed by a governmental revolving fund that is reimbursed in the event of success by a share in any final suiting royalties and written off in the case of failure to be recovered by a larger share of later and more successful inventions—each going forward in the government claims when it comes over, repaid all advances for the great and glory of France.

My experience with this idea was new. I went to see to our office to see the French minister of agriculture. During the present heating and apocalyptic time of rains by reducing acidity on the outside of each kernel, I spent a lot of time on it and it worked. Oh, but it was not commercially practical of exp. came here. Yet it was in extension in operation in France. It didn't happen. The pen to suit our conditions. It cost less in important money to find that out. It costs money to do the pilot work. The on any invention.

Idea Is Appealing

My recollection from those days is also that the University of Wisconsin had a variation of this plan. It is respect of the remarkable amount of put of inventions by its progress.

Whether these memories are accurate or not, the idea is appealing. If we had an adequate commission composed of an expert engineer like Knudsen, an industrial manager like Knudsen, a practical economist like John Flynn, a meet occasionally and look over the list of a mill ground out by young Amelia Earhart and less experienced men and women to see if they were not too early experimental development under the reimbursement government expenditure we might get further on our economic unbalance and unemployment problem.

Many Advantages seen

The object of such governmentally financed efforts could be reduction of our cost of living, the placement of lost foreign markets, development of substitutes for scarce imported materials as tin, rubber, silk, linen, yute (and all base fiber) vegetable fats and oils, cheap rustless steel—chromium and other steel-alloy products. The potential field is unlimited. From my experience I believe that several of the developments are just over the horizon needing only a little financing for the final boost. But for our depression, and the federal policies that have come with it, I believe that some of them would be provided today. Senator Pepper of Florida and others in Congress are studying legislation along these lines. I know of few things more important.

THE DAILY STORY

BENEFACCTOR

The Right Word Goes to the Wrong Place and a Man Finds It Impossible To Cash in on a Sure Thing

By ELEANOR CONNORS

Jim had been coming to the Rite-aid Employment Agency for about three weeks. Each day the clerk there told him that there was no opening for a man with his qualifications. And every day Jim had returned home, tired and discouraged. Any man would be discouraged after sitting in a dark room for a week waiting for the clerk to call out his name, and give him the long awaited white card.

Jim was 24, passably good-looking, and he wasn't discouraged. He stopped at the corner store and got a cake, a small one, for a big celebration. After supper, and when the baby and Mary were in bed, Jim began to talk to himself. He was a man who had saved all his money for household expenses, and he and Mary planned what they'd do after Jim got the job—not if he got it. The baby and Mary were what he knew he would have. Mary would be a new dress, Jim a new suit, and they'd buy a kiddie car for little Jimmy. Jim had said a bike, but Mary said no, he was too young. They would save some of Jim's money.

Jim had been a typist in the office of the sales manager of the Mercantile Products, Inc. The pay was small. He only received $24 a week, less social security. But Mary kept expenses down, and so

Jim was laid off. They had for three months and one-half years, and up until the time Jim was laid off, even put a little money in the bank. The office manager, Ted Marker, had a friend who wanted a job and so Jim was laid off to make room for the friend. At the time Jim wasn't particularly worried, for the war scare had been a big business boom. He was sure he could get a job then, and the increase in activity lasted only a short time. It was already a month or more, and no sign of a job. Jim kept trying just the same. One day he finally reached the employment agency, he went in and sat down as usual. He sat there from nine until almost quarter to one, when the clerk motioned to him to go home. He gave Jim a white card on which was the name of a man that wanted "someone who was a typewriter procedure." Jim decided to "play it on thick."

During the interview that followed, Jim revealed that he had been an assistant office manager in the Mercantile Products, Inc., for four years. Oh, yes, he had had a great deal of experience in handling accounts—opening and closing accounts. The office had been more or less in his charge. He left because a man can get in a rut, you know. The interviewer was impressed and told Jim to come back the next day for a definite answer. Jim understood, didn't he, that it was only fair to interview everyone who came to see about the position. When Jim agreed that it was the just and honorable thing to do, the interviewer decided that he'd better go home.

Plan Final Search for Amelia Earhart

Los Angeles, April 19 (AP)—A yacht elaborately equipped with diving and search apparatus will sail from California about mid-summer in an effort to determine finally the fate of Amelia Earhart, noted aviatrix.

E. H. Dimity of Oakland, co-founder of the Amelia Earhart foundation, disclosed plans for the expedition today.

Amelia Earhart and Capt. Fred Noonan were lost in July, 1937, after taking off from New Guinea for a search of islands in the South Seas around the world.

Dimity said the expedition would be large enough to carry six power boats for island shore search, and an amphibian plane for aerial scouting. It will be provisioned for a year's cruise.

Huntington Police To Discard Sam Brownes

Huntington, W. Va., April 19 (AP)—This summer, Huntington police will ditch their holsters to their belts. The ones that hold their holsters up—not to those of the "Sam Brownes" variety.

Chief Lon Whitten issued an order to his force dictating that they permanently dispense with the "Sam Brownes."

"I think they look better without holsters," the chief said.

When in "full dress," the copper catches the holster to hooks on his belt.

Emergency Slide Pole Proves Not So Good

Parkersburg, W. Va., April 19 (AP)—It was only a burning trash heap on the back door of a restaurant, but a fireman broke a leg in his hurry to answer the alarm.

Fire department officials said a slide pole from the second floor slipping quarters to the engine room last night was fractured when it landed.

The pole is for emergency use when firemen cannot sacrifice precious seconds using the stairway.

Child Should Be Trained To Have Self-Reliance

Importance of Early Training Is Pointed Out by Educator

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Often in this column I have emphasized the importance of training the child in self-reliance from his early years and, through many concrete instances, have suggested ways and means of cultivating it.

I enjoy the increasing number of letters I receive which tell how it worked, letters which describe success in child guidance and parent-child relationships. I felt strong admiration for the mother as I read the following from her letter. Those who have religious interest will be impressed that this mother prays for guidance in bringing up her children.

"Dear Dr. Myers: I have never before written you although for years I have read your articles and found help in them, as you always write concerning the average family, which I consider mine to be."

"What I wanted to tell you was that I agree with you very much in your idea of 'self-sufficiency'."

Two Daughters

"My two daughters, Louise, in the second year in high school, and Barbara, in junior high, are 16 and 13 years of age. . . . As early as the girls were allowed to go to the store and buy listed groceries, sometimes to select one other item of their own choosing. As they grew older, they sometimes selected the groceries for the whole meal."

We happened to live near three grocery stores. They learned early to compare the different food prices and to get the best bargains so that they might have the penny that would be left over. They were always careful to look for the best quality, too.

"At Christmas time they were allowed so much money with which to select gifts for the family and their friends."

"They were allowed the same privilege of selecting and buying their clothes and shoes. Sometimes their choice was better, sometimes not quite so good, but I consider them to be more or less experienced now. No clerk can talk them into buying something they do not want, and they certainly do compare prices and go where they can get the best buy. My husband and I want to train our boy that way, too. . . ."

Prayer Meant Much

"Prayer has always meant much to me, and taking our children to God in prayer has, we think, helped us solve many of our problems. I do not know how any mother or father could get along in raising children in this 'stream-lined age' without asking the aid of their Heavenly Father."

"May I wish you continued success in your fine daily column."

By the way, a few years ago, when I felt particularly low one day, about the guilt between what I preached and what I practiced as parent, I wrote a prayer for myself. Supposing it might be helpful to my fellow parents, I had it printed at the end of my book, "The Modern Parent." You may have a reprint of this parent's prayer by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it. In like manner you also may receive an assortment of prayers for the little child.

Tells Census Taker He's 128 Years Old

Chicago, April 19 (AP)—Sayed Mehren told a census taker here that he was 128 years old.

George W. Schreech, director of the census in this area, reported that Mehren presented books and documents as evidence of his long life span and that the astonished enumerator inscribed 128 on the official form.

Old age pension records included a certificate, however, in which Mehren listed his age as 26 when he was married 42 years ago. He has been a pensioner two years.

Mehren, gray and growing bald, told reporters that he had lost his birth certificate in Alexandria about 100 years ago.

Predicts Low Rate For Freight by Air

Parkersburg, W. Va., April 19 (AP)—Gill Robb Wilson of Trenton, N. J., president of the National Aeronautical Association, said that it will soon be possible "to carry freight by plane for seven and a half cents per ton mile."

Wilson, addressing the Parkersburg chapter of the NAA, declared the significance of the airplane's future was not as a passenger carrier but lay in a "nationally correlated development program with federal participation on the same principles highways were developed."

"Slickest" Confidence Man Indicted

New York, April 19 (AP)—Thirty-nine persons, including some identified by government agents as among the slickest confidence men in the country, have been indicted on federal charges of mail fraud and conspiring to swindle by means of the old ruse "pay-off racket."

The indictments climaxed a six-month investigation which showed, according to Assistant U. S. Attorney William H. Makepeace, that victims lost as much as $40,000.

Barbara J. Davis Doomed To Spend Life in Blindness

Memphis, Tenn., April 19 (AP)—Smiling little Barbara Joyce Davis, blind and deaf since an attack of meningitis eight years ago, probably will never see again, a surgeon announced after a second delicate operation revealed an eye seemingly beyond repair.

The vitreous inner chamber of the 11-year-old Memphis girl's eye had become stone-like in long years of disuse and deterioration, the physician said. At best, he indicated, the operation had been but a forlorn hope to release the child from a world of silent darkness. He "made" a new pupil for the eye several weeks ago.

Because there have been no means of communicating with the child since she was stricken, she has never learned to talk, although her vocal chords apparently are normal. Immediately after learning the outcome of the operation, interested friends planned to begin having her taught through touch—a method by which the famed Helen Keller years ago met—and mastered—similar handicaps.

Another ray of hope was the belief of a second specialist that her hearing might be at least partially restored through treatment of her ears.

A board of trustees—her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Davis, and others interested in her case—has at its disposal some $2,220 received in contributions to an education fund.

Willkie Petitions Circulating in Frisco

San Francisco, April 19 (AP)—Petitions favoring the election of utilities magnate Wendell Willkie as president have been placed in circulation here.

The petition said:

"The purpose of this declaration is to dramatize a demand which politicians will heed."

It praised Willkie as a man who "has a proven belief in free enterprise, yet can contemplate with equanimity the great changes in society which these moving times require."

No mention was made of a nominating convention or of Willkie's political affiliation. Who's Who lists him as a Democrat.

Keep Face Record Clean

By HELEN FOLLETT

CLEANLINESS is the first law of complexion care. In every pore is a sweat gland that sends out impurities, and an oil gland that films the skin with grease that catches dust. In big cities chimneys belch forth soot that finds its way into the pores. Then there's a pretty kettle of beauty fish.

Besides dust and oil there are dead skin scales; you're always losing some of your face, though you don't realize it. Unless the skin surface has a daily, thorough renovating—which doesn't mean a quick dab of the wash cloth—these scales will give the complexion a grey, dingy appearance.

A good old face washing does more than cleanse. The friction necessary for a scouring acts favorably upon the network of capillaries that gives color to the complexion. It keeps firm the underlying tissues that give to the human portrait a young appearance.

It's not wise to have the soap and water treatment just after coming from the street. The skin is too dry. It is better to use a cleansing oil when the flesh is sensitive. It is a good plan to use a cream after the nightly lathering, to avoid the drawn feeling that sometimes follows.

After creaming the complexion, give the leavings to your poor hands that are bound to be more or less of the household work. Have your paws in hot or cold water often during the day, or you are robbing the flesh of the natural lubricant poured out by the sebaceous glands. It needs oily applications, as well as soothing hand lotions. That is, if hands are to stay young. Rough ented by the Centre Street Methodist Church orchestra at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday evening, April 30 in the social hall of the church. The Legionettes, of Keyser, W. Va., will be on the program.

The Junior Cumberland 4-H Club will meet at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon at the home of Patsy Grant, 424 Goethe street. A demonstration will be given on cutting and pin basting a dress.

Colfax Rebekah Lodge No. 1, will hold a games and card party at 8:30 o'clock this evening at the Odd Fellows hall, South Mechanic street.

A surprise entertainment will feature the usual Saturday night dance of the Elks lodge this week. Lodge officials announced last night. Music will be provided by the Mid-night Bellhops. There will be a floorshow.

W. W. Trent Says High Schools Must Prepare Students for Life

Beckley, W. Va., April 19. (AP)—High schools "must prepare the boys and girls for the life they are to live whatever that life may be, or give place to some other school or other agency of government," principals were told today.

State Superintendent of Schools W. W. Trent of Charleston asserted that "preparation for white-collar jobs for living in the city or for going to college will no longer satisfy."

Trent, appearing before the twenty-first annual meeting of the Secondary School Principals Association, advocated courses of instruction which would fit the individual to his environment and future.

"They (the students)," he declared, "are beginning to question whether they should remain in high school, whether they should go to high school at all, or whether the studies in high school are of any particular value to them."

Dr. W. C. Ellis of Washington, coordinator for the American Education Association, said that the different conditions prevailing in communities made it imperative that schools be "unstandardized."

Only in teaching children to take their place in democracy should the institutions be alike, Ellis asserted.

THE KILLER SPEAKS

BY RICHARD HOUGHTON

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT
"YOU WON'T have to take any more risks," I told my friendly jailer, the little cook. "I'll be able to get off this barge at the next landing without your help."
"And without the police?"
"Right, I'm going to ask one of the men to go ashore with me."
"Which one?" asked the cook suspiciously.
"We'll, that big fellow didn't seem to be busy with the potatoes. He doesn't look like a regular member of the crew. How about him? You wouldn't be afraid to let me go in his custody, would you?"
The little man's eyes were wide. "Don't trust Bill. Don't go ashore with him!"
"So his name is Bill, eh? I thought so. He wouldn't be William Calla, would he?"
The cook was frightened. "Sh!"
He went to the galley door and looked out to make sure no one was listening. "How did you guess that?" he asked, coming back. "We thought you couldn't recognize him."
"His size gave him away. And since he's William Calla I know he'll be glad of the chance to go ashore with me in the dark. He'll think it will be a good chance to finish the job he started."
"You're sure got plenty of nerve."

The little man's eyes were wide. "D—don't trust Bill."

"I'll have the advantage. I'll know my danger, and he won't know that I know."
The rumble of the hand trucks below us had ceased. There was a scraping and a thumping as the gangplank was pulled aboard. Pete shouted to someone to cast off the mooring rope. The gasoline engine of the barge came to life. We were on our way to Big Bend. No one came up to the galley. Perhaps they felt uneasy in my presence. I wouldn't blame them.
"How did this outfit get mixed up with Calla?" I asked. "You've already told me you don't go for murder."
"He's a friend of Pete's," the little cook told me. "I think Pete owes him some money or something. Bill asked for a ride to Frisco tonight. We didn't know about him lying that old rowboat to our stern. He used a long rope and we didn't see it in the fog. Jack heard you holler and pulled you in. We were surprised."
"So was Mr. Calla, I imagine," I said.
He thought he could get away with it. When you told us the name of the man who tied you in that boat—"
"You think he hoped you would never know?"
"I think after that rowboat sank he was going to cut the rope."
"And that's the kind of man you're trying to protect?"
"I'm not protecting him. I just don't like the idea of turning him over to you—and your friends. How do I know what he had against you? It must be something bad, or he wouldn't try to kill you."
"You probably think he's just a bootlegger."
"Easy, how much do you know?"
"Whatever I know about Mr.

Calla's liquor business, and the part this barge plays in it. I'm willing to forget," I said. "He's in a much worse game, and I believe he's in it alone."
I left the little man speechless and walked to the galley door again. I looked down the ladder. Four cigarettes gloved in the shadows below. I climbed down. "I want to see if I can find a way to get back to the city from Big Bend," I announced. "Would any of you fellows have time to show me how to reach a ranch house when we get there?"
"Sure, I'll show you," volunteered Bill.
His voice was disguised, but I recognized it.
The crew stirred uneasily. There were several whispered comments not quite loud enough for me to overhear.
"How long will you be stopping?" I asked. "How long will I have to get back, if there's no one at the farm house?"
"About fifteen minutes," said a voice I knew to be Pete's. "We'll wait a couple more minutes—for Bill."
"I'll go back to the galley and get into my own clothes," I said. "They ought to be dry by now. Much obliged to you—Bill."
He grunted, apparently annoyed that Pete hadn't been quick witted enough to give him another name. Up in the galley the cook was awaiting me nervously. "Well, what's it going to be?"
"Your friend Bill fell for it. In fact, he suggested he'd like to go with me."
"He's no friend of mine!"
"All right, all right."
"Why don't you go alone?"
"Bill wouldn't like that. Have you a revolver I can borrow?"
The little man's eyes widened. "So that's it? You think you can handle him if you've got a gun?"

RETURNING THE SUIT
SOUND conventions of defensive play are those which convey valuable meanings from one player to his partner without sacrificing any of the trick-taking value of the cards used. Such a convention is the one that a player should return the original fourth-best of the suit his partner led against a No Trump contract, if he believes that suit affords a good defense against the declarer. The value of this is largely lost, however, if the original leader will not take the trouble to read the messages involved.

West obviously disliked leading a heart into that rebel suit, so selected his diamond 5. South let the trick go to the J, and East returned the diamond 7. Deciding now that a hold-up would do no good because he figured each defender for four diamonds, South took the second trick with the A. Lacking dummy entries, he laid down the two high spades and led a third to West. The latter cashed the diamond K, and realized he had blocked the suit. He could get a fourth trick, in hearts, but still wanted to set the contract. So he led away from his heart A, tempting declarer to win it in dummy and then try a club finesse. The heart trick was won in dummy, but then South saw through the ruse. He played two high clubs to drop the queen and succeeded, giving him a lucky game.

If West had counted East's return of the diamond 7 as his original fourth-best, he would have known East had the remaining two higher ones out, the Q and K, and so should have played his diamond K under declarer's A. Had he done so, the contract could have been set surely, no matter what South did.

Cookery Has Some Short Cuts To Help Conquer Spring Fever

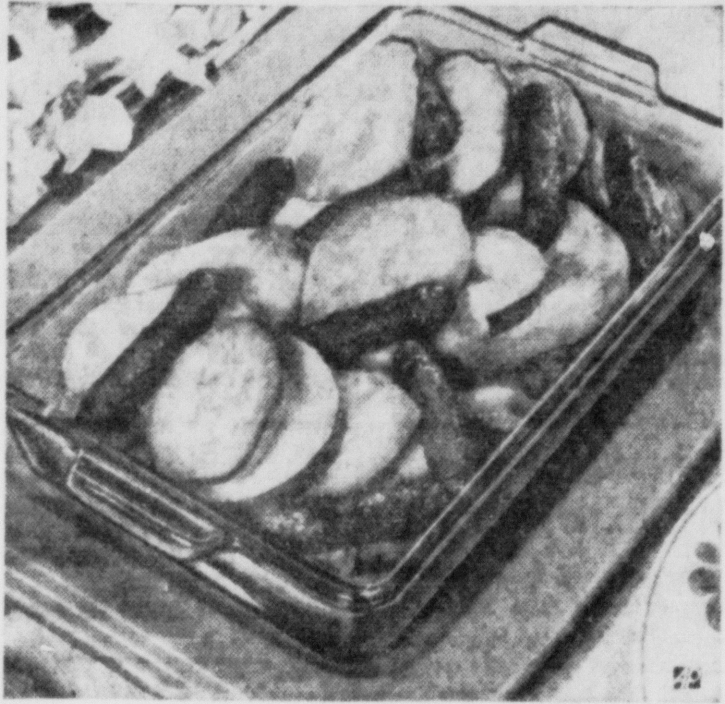

LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
AP Feature Service Writer

Hum. Nice spring weather—so nice to loaf—meals are so difficult to prepare. And all those dishes to wash after dinner—in the kitchen!

Well, we can't get out of eating, but we can do the next best thing; we can make a little easier to prepare and clear away. Our solution is the one-dish meal—several foods combined together in a single utensil, transferred to a platter and served to table. Some such meals can be prepared in casserole and go directly to table in the cooking pan. Ladies, save dishes.

Occasionally you may have to stagger cooking times, when you have dishes that require varied cooking periods. But that's not too difficult, and you still save lots of kitchen watching.

The tantalizing odors of this one-dish meal will bring the folks running to the table when dinner is announced. Select a large, shallow baking dish (glass enameled is best), butter it well and set in 4 rib veal chops, 2-3 of which thick. Sprinkle them with salt and seasonings, then surround them with peeled new potatoes, also well seasoned, and sliced carrots. Pour in 2-3 cup boiling water and 2 tablespoons butter. Cover and bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven—about 350 degrees. Then add 4 large peeled onions and 1-2 cup chopped celery. Sprinkle with a little more salt and replace the cover. Bake 45 minutes, basting twice. Uncover during the last 10 minutes of cooking to thoroughly brown the tops of the foods. Bake some apples, peaches, rhubarb or other fresh fruit for dessert and with a quick bread (bran muffins, biscuits or cinnamon buns) you have a delicious meal with one cooking. All you need then is a crisp salad and beverage.

Here's a menu that takes less time to bake. Arrange chopped meat cakes in a baking dish. Sprinkle with a little flour, chopped onions and parsley for extra taste. Cover with a 2-inch layer of corn (canned or frozen) and then cover with canned tomatoes. Dot with butter and bake, uncovered, 35 minutes in a moderate oven. Slip into the oven a cherry cobbler, rhubarb roll or pineapple tart and, with a generous fruit, tossed green or cabbage salad, you have a spring meal that is tops.

Try this pork chop-potato one-disher. It's most appetizing. Dip thick pork chops into egg yolks and then into seasoned crumbs and arrange in a shallow, greased baking dish. Cover with sliced raw potatoes, floured and seasoned, and then sprinkle with chopped celery and parsley. Fill the dish with milk. Cover the whole thing and bake 40 minutes in a moderate oven. Uncover and brown for 10 minutes. The last 30 minutes of the cooking, bake in the oven a cup of apricots or pineapple, placed in a shallow buttered baking dish. Sprinkle them with a little lemon juice, brown sugar, cinnamon and half a cup of fruit juices or water. Cooked until well glazed, they add a pleasing flip to the baked dinner. A fresh gingerbread, cottage pudding or fruit whip baked the last 30 minutes, offers a delicious dessert for this meal.

Food Value of Greens Discussed

Various Types Will Pep Up Family's Appetite at This Time

With spring here at last, housewives are turning to various types of greens to pep up the family's jaded appetite. Margaret McPheeters, nutrition specialist of the Extension Service, says that any greens of about the same tenderness that combine well together will blend to form an appealing dish. Some good combinations are beets and turnips tops, field cress and spinach, corn salad and mustard greens. Spinach is an exceptionally good mixer, she points out, as it goes with nearly any greens. With the strong flavored ones, it may be necessary to use from two to five times as much spinach.

Contain Vitamins

Just which of the many leafy, green vegetables the homemaker serves her family is not especially important. Certain varieties supply the same minerals and vitamins more economically than others. In spring and early summer wild greens are to be had, and home gardens can be planted to produce some sort of greens up until the first frost. Beet tops, chard, spinach, mustard, kale, collards, and turnip tops are all on the list of leafy greens.

Watercress, endive, lettuce, and cabbage are old and respected members of the salad family. It may be a new idea to some to use tender, mild-flavored spinach leaves, chopped and uncooked, in salads.

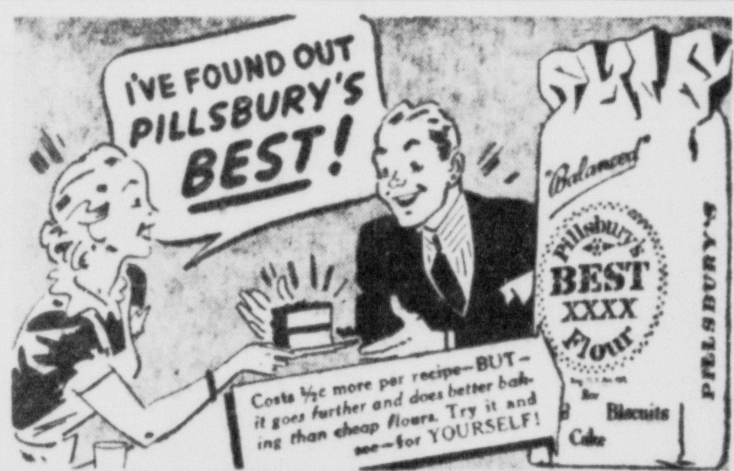

Cook Quickly

The cooking technique recommended by Miss McPheeters for all greens is: "Cook as quickly as possible, using little or no water. Use the cooking water if that is possible."

Poor Man's Pudding

Don't be misled by the name of this old-fashioned dessert. Though economical, it has been tested by time and found excellent. The ingredients: two cups milk, one cup flour, one and a half cups grated bread, one-half cup each of chopped suet, seeded raisins, currants and brown sugar and two teaspoons baking powder.

Combine the ingredients in this order: suet, raisins, currants, bread, flour, baking powder, sugar and milk. Beat mixture well and place in greased mold. Place in boiling water half way up sides of mold and steam for two hours. Turn out carefully and serve with hot sauce.

WIFE PRESERVERS

Marshmallows soaked in orange juice before being added to a salad are delicious.

And after the water starts to boil, leave the pan uncovered.

Thorough washing through several waters should be the first step in preparation of any greens. Greens should be salted from the beginning of cooking. Cook best greens and Swiss chard about ten minutes, spinach, five to eight minutes, and other greens accordingly, until they are wilted and tender. If stems are included, cooking takes a little longer. The shortest possible cooking period reduces the amount of vitamin loss by heating. Cooking water should be used, if possible, to save the vitamins and minerals dissolved in it. Leaving the lid off helps to retain green color.

Caramel Icing

This delicious icing can be used to improve almost any plain pound or layer cake. Ingredients needed include: three cups medium brown sugar, three-fourths cup whole milk, one-half cup butter and one teaspoon vanilla. Place the sugar and milk in a saucepan and cook until it boils, stirring constantly. When it forms a soft ball in cold water, remove from fire and add butter. Then cool and add vanilla, beating and one teaspoon salt. Drop by until creamy. Frost both sides and top of cake.

Corn Mush Fritters

Mix two cups corn mush that will stir, one tablespoon flour, one egg. Then cool and add vanilla, beating and one teaspoon salt. Drop by until creamy. Frost both sides and top of cake.

A MILLION EVERY DAY
Eat the proven laxative cereal

Who says ALL-BRAN is America's dependable laxative cereal? The one million people who choose it for breakfast, or some other meal, every day. On the average day, one million servings!

But that's only part of the story. For 20 years Americans have looked to ALL-BRAN as an answer to the problem of common constipation (due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in the diet).

The test of science. Research scientists—both nutritionists and medical men in famous universities—have proven ALL-BRAN's effectiveness over and over again. Millions of people have used it. A product has to be good to

W. Va. Official Held under Bond On Postal Charge

Employment Service Head Abused Franking Privilege Is Charged

Charleston, W. Va., April 19 (AP)—C. P. McKenna, head of the State Employment Service, mentioned in a recent statement by Senator M. M. Neely was placed under $500 federal court bond here for hearing on charges he used government franked envelopes for private business.

The charges, filed by U. S. District Attorney E. R. Via before Judge George W. McClintock, were based on three letters which discussed creation of a "benefit fund" among department employees.

Neely who is a Democrat, nomination is now in a statement on the senate floor March 8 asserted that political campaign funds were being extorted from state employees. He read from letters he said were signed by C. P. McKenna and addressed to J. Thomas Lane at Clarksburg.

The letters, copies of which were typed out and made a part of the bill before Judge McClintock, were addressed to J. Thomas Lane. Lane formerly was district manager of the re-employment service. Judge McClintock set April 25 for hearing.

"Willful" Abuse Claimed
The bill of complaint filed by Via asserted that on three separate occasions McKenna "willfully and knowingly" made use of franked envelopes to avoid payment of postage.

The first letter attached to the bill was dated February 24, 1938 and marked "personal". It discussed advisability of creating "within our own organization" a benefit fund from voluntary contributions "for the many and varied needs of the permanent personnel."

There was no mention of specific purposes, other than to "eliminate the necessity of solicitation from time to time."

Scale Suggested
The letter proposed that the fund be supervised by a statewide committee of five and suggested a contribution scale which would be nothing for salaries under $1,000, one per cent on salaries from $1,000 to $1,499, one and a half per cent from $1,500 to $2,499 and two per cent from $2,500 upward.

The second letter was dated March 14, 1938, and dealt with whether the fund should be supervised by a general state controlling agency or by districts. It stated, Mr. Stump, favored a central control. John S. Stump Jr. is head of the Department of Unemployment Compensation of which the Employment Service is a division.

Lane Gave Letter to Neely
The third letter made brief mention of Lane's correspondence and asked him to restate objections to the proposed plan, the bill related.

Lane, who has not been with the service since January, said on March 8 at Clarksburg that he had turned McKenna's letter over to Neely. Neely, leader of the "federal" faction of the Democratic party opposing the "statehouse" wing, asked in his Senate speech that the letter be returned to their proper envelopes because he intended to turn them over to the district attorney.

Stocks Close Slightly Lower at End of Day of Wavering Prices

Leading Issues, However, Mirror of Markets Register Modest Advances

By FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, April 19 (AP)—Late strength in shipping, paper, airline and woolen company stocks today put props under a previously wavering market.

Leading issues at the last reduced or converted early losses into modest advances running to two points or more.

Downward tendencies were general throughout the list until the final hour. Persistent confusion over European developments served to offset encouraging business news at home, brokers said.

Losers outnumbered gainers at the close, however, and the Associated Press average of sixty stocks was off 1/2 of a point at 49.6, making the seventh consecutive minus sign. Total transfers were 1,154,990 shares against 1,205,250 yesterday.

U. S. Rubber preferred got back 3/4 points of yesterday's 13-point drop. Falling fractions to a point or so in the curb were Aluminum of America, Hayden Chemical, Phoenix Securities and Pittsburgh Plate Glass. Gains were posted for Gulf Oil, Babcock & Wilcox and American Gas. The turnover here was about 243,000 shares compared with 234,000 yesterday.

'Bachelor Scurvy' Often Found in Midst of Plenty

Caused by Food-deficiency Resulting from Lack of Fresh Foods

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

It has been called "bachelor scurvy" because it occurs usually in lonely old men who are starving in the midst of plenty. And they don't even know they are starving. They know something is the matter with them, but they don't know what.

Scurvy is a food-deficiency disease resulting from lack of fresh foods, especially fresh fruits. Babies develop it more often nowadays than adults, unless special care is taken to give them orange juice daily. It used to be a regular hazard on a ship that made a long voyage. The sailors ate nothing but salt meat and preserved food until it was found that if they were made to suck a lime or an orange every day, they could make voyages with complete freedom from scurvy.

Disease Is Rare

Among adults nowadays it is a special new song hits, sung by Dorothy Lamour.

Tyrone Power as "Johnny Apollo," banker's embittered son, turned mobster when his idolized father is sent to prison, in the Twentieth Century-Fox picture of that title which is now showing at the Strand theater. Alluring Dorothy Lamour is co-starred with Tyrone, and Edward Arnold plays the father.

rare—a very rare-disease, but it does occur even in centers of population where food is abundant.

The usual patient is a man over fifty years of age who lives alone and whose subsistence depends upon his own culinary inclinations. I saw one case in California, the land of oranges.

Some patients who adhere too religiously to an ulcer diet may develop it. Minot cites a patient who had a tendency to diarrhea and subsisted on a milk and cracker diet for over a year. Anemia, with spontaneous gum hemorrhages, is common.

Food deficiency diseases may develop when the diet is adequate, but due to bad digestion or bad absorption, all the foods are not utilized. In alcoholics who substitute whiskey for food and who also develop an inflammation of the stomach, symptoms may develop which are definitely due to lack of vitamins or minerals.

The multiple neuritis formerly designated as "alcoholic neuritis" is nearly exclusively of this kind and origin.

Doesn't Eat Enough

Shattuck first called attention to this possibility. The alcoholic notoriously scamp his food supply; he gets enough caloric energy from his liquor, and if he does eat, chooses over-refined or processed had no polyneuritis, the vitamin B intake was adequate.

Another deficiency condition recently studied is riboflavin deficiency. This consists of an eruption and pallor on the lips at the angle of the mouth or on the skin around the mouth and also on the tongue. As the disease progresses, the skin becomes macerated and ulcerations develop.

It occurs in alcoholics and those on a deficiency diet or who have stomach trouble which prevents them from absorbing their food properly.

It can be cured by administering synthetic riboflavin, which comes in powder form.

Micah's Vision of Peace

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Micah, prophet of Jerusalem, cried woe to them that work evil; "they covet fields, and take them by violence; and houses, and take them away, so that they oppress a man and his house."

The women of my people have ye cast out from their pleasant houses; from their children have ye taken away my glory forever," Micah accused the wicked people of Jerusalem.

But when the Lord comes He shall rebuke strong nations, and "they shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks... but they shall sit every man under his vine."

Micah also prophesied the coming of Jesus, that He would be born in Bethlehem. "Out of thee shall He come forth, that is to be the ruler of Israel." (GOLDEN TEXT—Micah 4:3.)

Micah's Vision of Peace

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON 420

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL.
The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for April 21 is Micah, the Golden Text being Micah 4:3, "And they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

MICAH is rather a common name among the Jewish people and was borne by eleven different persons mentioned in the Old Testament. It is the same as Micahiah, both forms being short for Micah-jahu, which means "Who is like Jehovah?"

Micah lived during the reign of Hezekiah, probably between 726 and 701 B. C. His home was about 20 miles from Jerusalem, and he lived and preached much of the time in the city.

The time in which he lived was much the same as that in which Amos and Hosea prophesied. Men made their money by dishonesty, bribery, by lending money to poor people, then, when the latter could not pay the high rates of interest, by foreclosing on their property and taking it away from them.

"And they covet fields," says Micah in Chapter 2, Verse 2; "and take them by violence; and houses, and take them away; so they oppress a man and his house, even a man and his heritage."

Cast Widows from Homes
Further on he speaks of "the women of my people have ye cast out from their pleasant houses, from their children have ye taken away my glory forever."

In Chapter 3 it is written: "They build up Zion with blood, and Jerusalem with iniquity. The heads thereof judge for reward, and the priests thereof teach for hire, and the prophets thereof divine for money; yet will they lean upon the Lord, and say, Is not the Lord among us? none will come upon us, we will not see war, nor will we see sword."

But this wickedness would not last forever, Micah told his people. "But in the last days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of the Lord shall be established in the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and people shall flow unto it."

"And many nations shall come, and say, Come, let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob; And He will teach His ways, and we will walk in His paths; for the law shall go forth of Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem."

Micah then pronounced his hope for peace in words which today, in an embattled world, we still quote as our hope for the future, which seems far off indeed in these times. Micah is the first of the prophets to have this dream of world peace.

"And He shall judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

"But they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig tree; and none shall make them afraid: for the mouth of the Lord of Hosts hath spoken it."

"For all people will walk every one in the name of his god, and we will walk in the name of the Lord our God for ever and ever."

Micah prophesied the coming of Jesus and that He would be born in Bethlehem.

"But thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall He come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel."

The faults that Micah deplored in the citizens of Jerusalem are still very much in evidence in public life. They still threaten the stability of our institutions and the happiness of our people. Cheating, lying, bribe taking are not unknown in our own beloved land, and wars still go on. But we can still have hope and faith that in the end the words of Micah, preaching peace and righteousness, will come true.

Streams in Central Part of West Virginia Are Nearing Flood Crests

By The Associated Press. Steady, unabating rains over West Virginia sent the West Fork river, its tributaries and other mid-state streams to near flood crests yesterday (Friday) and started others rising.

The Allegheny and Monongahela rivers rose at Pittsburgh after showers washed out the season's opening baseball game, and W. S. Brotzman, weather forecaster, predicted more rain.

Brotzman said, however, he did not believe there was serious danger from high waters.

Rain forced cancellation of a baseball game between Duquesne University and West Virginia University at Morgantown.

At Clarksburg, the West Fork reached to within nine inches of the five-foot flood stage and continued slowly upward.

Late in the day the State Road Commission at Charleston said no highways outside cities yet were blocked. At Clarksburg, commission officials expected to close Route 19 from Clarksburg to Weston by nightfall.

Road officials said a foot of water stood on Route 19 within Weston itself, but that traffic was being detoured over city streets.

Reports there said the rain virtually ceased before nightfall.

The Ohio river, meanwhile, crept upward at Huntington, Parkersburg and other West Virginia points while the rainfall continued.

At Huntington, the stage at 3 p. m. was 34.5 feet and the waters rose 2 of a foot an hour. The city had 75 inches of rainfall within twenty-four hours.

Flood stage at Huntington is fifty feet.

Midland Lodge Member Elected To State Office

Walter E. Ross Is Named Vice-President of State Organization

Midland, Md., April 19.—For the first time in its seventy-eight years of existence, Hope Council No. 30 Junior Order of American Mechanics has one of its members on the state official board of that organization. Walter E. Ross, councilor of the local order, was elected this week at the state convention held in Baltimore to the office of State Vice-councilor. It is also only the fourth time that Allegany County has been represented on the board. Mr. Ross defeated Robert Elgin Hagerstown, by a vote of 91 to 29.

Colin Bowers, Mt. Savage, was also a nominee but withdrew before the votes were cast. Raymond Hawkins, Salisbury, vice-councilor for the past year was elected councilor by an overwhelming vote. It is a rare occasion that a vice councilor is not elected to the highest state office in the following election and Mr. Ross will, in all probability, lead the Junior Order throughout the state next year.

Howard L. Memmerick was re-elected state Secretary. When his term expires this year he will have completed a period of twenty years in that office and will also have been a member of the organization for fifty years. A resolution was passed commending United States Senators Dies, Reynolds and Starnes for their work against un-American activities. A copy of the resolution was mailed to each of the senators.

It was decided to hold next year's convention in the Junior Order Temple, Baltimore.

"I am the only Democratic candidate for United States Senator who is not tied to some individual or some group who desire to get some special privilege," he said in a prepared statement.

"Those who expect to get special favors are not for me, those who expect to get special privileges are not for me. My supporters are people who want good government and who vote without orders."

"My record is known and I'm not ashamed of it. As the campaign progresses I shall amplify my stand on specific issues."

Lodge No. 662 Will Be Host At Convention

Northern District Meeting Expected To Attract 250 Visitors

Oakland, April 19.—A report of Works Projects Administration accomplishments in Garrett county covering a four and one-half year period ending January 1, made public by F. W. Springer, district manager of Frederick, points out two projects of special significance, although many other projects were completed.

The one ranking high in public favor was the construction of the municipal golf course on the city property west of the city limits, while the other one, most important to the citizens of the entire county, was the improvement of secondary and farm-to-market road systems.

The nine-hole golf course was endorsed by the city council and was completed in 1938.

Roads Constructed

Approximately fifty-two miles of roads were constructed by WPA during the period covered by the report, of which about fifty-one miles were rural roads. Of this total forty-eight miles are the "low type" surface, the remainder "high type" surface, or permanent surfaced.

Native stone was employed for the base which varies from six to eight inches in thickness. The type of road built has met in all respects the State's specifications for secondary roads, except where volume of traffic was restricted.

Other work done by WPA includes laying of culverts, construction of drainage ditches and the building of small bridges, usually of wood.

492 culverts with a total length of 12,963 feet, have been built by the WPA in Garrett county in the course of the past four and one-half years, Mr. Springer's analysis shows.

Other useful projects completed by the WPA in Garrett county, include a fish hatchery with an annual capacity of 100,000 fingerlings; construction of retaining walls and restraints, totalling 2,706 linear feet, the building of sewage treatment plant with a daily capacity of forty-seven gallons, construction of 200 miles of storm and sanitary sewers and installation of sewerage service connections to the number of 300, 506 abandoned mine openings were sealed.

Continued rainfall has delayed the official opening of the Oakland municipal golf course, but preparations for the coming season have continued with the leaders of the golf club and decision of the City Council to manage the financial matters of the course.

At a meeting of the club with the city council, D. Edward Offutt was elected president of the golf club, Garthright May, vice-president, and W. O. Davis, secretary.

It may be possible to open the course Sunday, although since the rain continued today it was not considered probable.

Deibert M. Davis, Dr. E. J. Baumgartner, councilmen, and Lawrence M. Fraley, mayor, were appointed as the council's golf committee, with Garthright May as agent between the committee and the regular golf club.

Last year the club was responsible for the finances at the course, guarantee the city council six percent of the investment. This was paid and also some additional funds were turned over to the council.

Brooklyn Turns On Arch-Enemy of Greater New York

Whooping, Booming Crowd of 24,741 Enjoy Slaughter

Durocher's Dreadnaught Score Six Runs in Eighth Inning

Brooklyn, April 19 (AP)—The venomous Dodgers slaughtered the New York Giants 12 to 0 today to give a whooping, booming crowd of 24,741 Flatbush fans an opening day thrill of practically pennant proportions.

Hugh Casey allowed nine hits in steering Brooklyn to its second straight shutout, but kept them well scattered and was seldom in danger of being scored upon and never threatened with losing.

The Dodgers simply steamrolled their arch enemies from across town, scoring one run in each of the fourth, fifth and sixth innings, three in the seventh and giving a grand fireworks display of six runs in the eighth when they battered around and the Giants fell to pieces.

Pirate Victory in Opener Traced to Frisch Spirit

St. Louis, April 19 (AP)—It took only the first inning of the first day of the major league season to show that Frankie Frisch has the Pittsburgh Pirates playing the Fordham Flash way.

Infused with the Frisch spirit, Pittsburgh ran the bakes and hustled in the field. There was new life in the Pirate crew.

In the first half-inning of the opening game against the Cardinals, the Pirates stole two bases, and in the Cardinals' half they nailed a runner at the plate on a snappy cut-off play.

Elbie Fletcher tumbled a grounder in the ninth inning, putting the Pirates in a hole. When the game ended he said something to Frisch about the error.

"You'll make a lot of errors," Frisch replied with his hand on Fletcher's shoulder. "Even the old Flash made errors. But you were trying. Don't worry about errors. Just hustle and all will be well."

That's Frisch's way—hustle and all will be well.

Armour Says Jones Was at Peak in 1926

Tommy Armour got to talking about Bobby Jones. In 1926, the year he played Hagen in that 72-hole match he was the most perfect thing ever set on a course," said Armour. "I've never seen his equal on second shots. Remember, I said 1926. I don't think he was 80 percent of the golfer in 1930, when he made that grand slam, that he was four years previous. Not 80 percent. I'm not telling tales out of school, either. He knows it. He was lucky to win the open in 30, which proves what I said earlier."

Armour himself is probably one of the most perfect iron players ever to pick up a club, or perhaps was such in his heyday, writes John P. Carmichael in "The Chicago Daily News." And the best man from tee to green? Tommy says there's one. "Wild Bill Melhorn," said the silver-haired Scot. "From that tee to the green he was perfection."

Pure Motives, It Seems, Don't Thrive in Boxing

By JOHN LARDNER
Released by North American Newspaper Alliance

New York, April 19.—While still fighting under Jacobs auspices, little Henry Armstrong, the world's welterweight champion, denounces Michael Jacobs as a dangerous dictator. He refers to Mike as the Duke of boxing.

Those are hard words in cauliflower alley, where duce is pronounced deuce. Even in pinocchio, the national pastime of the alley, a deuce is not very good, and Michael's pals are defying little Henry from safe distances, ranging from one to three thousand miles.

"If I heard him say that, I would poke him in the nose, if he wasn't Henry Armstrong," says Mushy Jackson, gnashing his teeth. Mr. Jackson is one of Michael's staunchest adherents, official masseur and talent scout to the deuce.

The deuce himself is scornful of little Henry's blast.

"I made Armstrong what he is today," growls Mr. Jacobs. "He was a peanut fighter when he started fighting for me. The best he could do was $3 tops, ringside. Look at him now—a $1500 fighter, thanks to Uncle Mike."

Henry a Poet at Heart

Uncle Mike is the deuce's affectionate name for himself. There may be something in what he says. On the other hand, it may be that little Henry Armstrong would have done just as well in the service of some other dictator, or even in a democracy—aside from the fact that all the opponents worth fighting were under exclusive contract to the deuce.

I know little Henry to be a poet at heart, and thus, while I have heard him denounce Mr. Jacobs with a fair show of zeal, I do not believe that the idea originated with him. Henry's mind is too much occupied with dactyls, anapests, and trochees. I believe Mike's most dangerous enemy in the Armstrong camp is the man behind the man behind the gun, fat Eddie Mead.

Mr. Mead is Armstrong's manager. Unlike the majority of contemporary fight managers, he has never fawned on the deuce. Fat Eddie is a restless, independent spirit, and from time to time he has gone so far as to bark out loud that the deuce and his hirelings were jobbing him.

He may be right. It is no secret that the deuce considers it the poorest sort of taste in Mr. Mead to go around barking when everybody would be happy if he just shut up.

The deuce has nothing to hide that I know of, but Mr. Mead has a great deal to gain by sniping at him. It is all part of a very interesting situation which has developed in boxing in the last year, a situation which I cannot cover in one story, but which centers about the efforts of certain rebels to dislodge Mr. Jacobs from the deuce'ship.

Say Mike is Vulnerable

They feel that Michael is past his peak and vulnerable to a sharp attack. Their motives are the very worst, for while Mr. Fat Eddie Mead, for instance, is arm in arm in denouncing dictatorship, there is nothing he would like better than to be the deuce himself. Having prospered with little Henry Armstrong, Mr. Mead would like to expand, metaphorically speaking.

There are other rebels—James J. Johnston, Jack Dempsey, Nate Drumman, and some of the state commissions allied with the National (well, fairly national) Boxing Commission. Mr. Mead is the strongest and the most outspoken rebel on the field at the moment, even though his father, for humble commercial reasons, is still fighting for Jacobs.

Next to Jacobs, it may well be that the most powerful figure in boxing today is a stout, but sinister gentleman known as Al (Westie) Weill. Mr. Weill is the sworn foe of Mr. Mead, and therefore they do not co-operate. Instead, the Weills and the strong stable of fighters work hand-in-hand with the deuce.

There are some observers who believe that Mr. Weill plans to beat Mr. Mead to the mother lode by engineering a peaceful revolution from within, which will end with himself as deuce and Mr. Mead out in the cold. If Mike Jacobs holds firm, however, the boys may bury the axe temporarily and form a common front.

Misery makes strange bedfellows, to use a phrase which I coined in 1910 while using the name of Shakespeare.

It would be like to emphasize at this time that nobody's motive in this battle, not even the NBA's, is wholly pure. Pure motives do not thrive in boxing, and so long as the boys confine their tricks to one another—round-robin rivalry, so to speak—and do not milk the public more than is strictly necessary, it should make good watching.

Keep your eyes on the deuce, fat Eddie Mead, and Alphonse (Westie) Weill.

Cubs Open Season At Home with 4-0 Home Opener That Win Over Cards Lacks Ceremonies

French Tosses Airtight Get Four Runs in First Ball, and Hartnett "Gets Gate"

Chicago, April 19 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs opened their home season today with a 4 to 0 shutout victory over the St. Louis Cardinals before a shivering crowd of 9,029 in 41-degree weather.

Larry French tossed airtight ball all the way, giving up six hits, including two doubles.

Rookie Bob Sturgeon, despite two errors at shortstop, was the Cub spark, getting a double and two singles off Morton Cooper and his successor, Jack Russell.

Manager Gabby Hartnett turned the catching chores for the day over to Al Todd and remained out of sight until the eighth inning when he went out to speak his mind to umpire Ziggy Sears on a ball called on batter Johnny Mize. French began the protest and Hartnett picked it up finally becoming so stubborn in his argument that Sears sent him to the showers.

Chicago, April 19 (AP)—The machine-like Yankees opened their American League home season today with a mechanical 5 to 3 triumph over the Washington Senators that lacked most of the gloss of the day's ceremonies.

Before the game started Commissioner K. M. Landis presented the Yankees with emblems of their fourth consecutive world championship, league President William Harridge dedicated a plaque in centerfield to the late Col. Jacob Ruppert and Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia tossed out the first ball.

The weather was cold, damp and dark, so a crowd of only 15,299 showed up.

The champs took all the contest out of the game with four runs in the first inning during which Joe Gordon hit a prodigious 350-foot homer with one on. After that they settled down to play their string out.

Gordon's feat was a drive into the lower left field grandstand that Manager Bucky Harris and most of the Washington players thought was foul. Harris continued his protests from the middle of the first inning right into the second and was banished from the park by Umpire Joe Rue.

The Senators committed three errors and pitchers Ken Chase and Al Hollingsworth gave four bases on balls—some of the results being the Yankees scored their final run in the eighth without a hit.

Heath, who slumped to a .100 batting average in 1939 after a .343 first season, continued for a three-run homer. Heath's long sixth-inning drive sent Henry Pippin went into the field stands of Cleveland Stadium, where 26,529 spectators were in attendance.

Allen, who was in the line of fire to see the Indians open their season. Ben Chapman and Trosky scored ahead of Heath. Chapman had doubled to send Lou Brown in with the first run.

The Tigers' three blows were all earned. Heath pitched a complete game, allowing only three hits and no runs.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, April 19. (AP)—When passing out bouquets to colleges for judicious handling of their athletic problems save a fragment one for Washington University of St. Louis, a school which listened to the walls for big-time football and instead of picking up the baby just shut the door.

As many another school gets bolder and bolder in the quest for material, Washington, thanks to a little alumni interference, had decided to march resolutely backward. It is returning football to the students despite the last lesson at the University of Chicago, which returned it to the students and eventually gave it back to the Indians.

It all came about through insistent demands of a group of downtown alumni for headline football. The pressure became so severe that Jimmy Conzelmann for eight years coach at the school, his alma mater, resigned by request last January.

Conzelmann wasn't quite big enough in the estimation of the maddens, who perhaps now are thinking that perhaps they were looking at him through the wrong end of the glasses. He was once coach and one of the owners of the Detroit pro team, and now is under contract to coach the Chicago Cardinals.

It is reported that the idea of the bigger-and-better-football group was to hire Jack Sutherland, then at liberty, but there were certain wrenches which couldn't be removed from the plan.

Meanwhile the school officials had gone into a huddle, and emerged with the announcement that if there was going to be any big time, the alumni would have to have it themselves. Football at Washington was going to be re-emphasized, but definitely.

The first step was the naming of Frank J. Loeb, twenty-seven-year-old former Purdue end, as head coach, and appointing Frank Kopczak, twenty-six, who had played tackle at Notre Dame, as his first assistant. Undoubtedly capable men, their names were in the telephone book and that's about all so far as reputations in the football world were concerned.

Having given the school perhaps the youngest coaching staff in the nation among larger institutions, the officials announced that henceforth the game would be strictly a student's affair.

The decision apparently was based on a staunch belief that college football as it is conducted in many quarters is headed for the rocks, and that the schools which put the emphasis on winning at all costs will eventually cut their own throats.

What happens from now on at Washington will be watched with interest. But whatever happens, the Bears definitely are on the right track.

Players With Baseball Brains Last Longer

Eddie Collins was asked why some ball players last so much longer than others, writes H. G. Salsinger in "The Detroit News." He answered: "Because they have baseball brains."

Collins tried to explain: "Some players have more power than others, more weight, muscle and stamina. Others run faster or hit harder, but they wear out because they lack something. I'm trying to think of what it is and I would say it has its source in ability to concentrate, naturally and swiftly, as the baseball pattern changes. Gehrig's feet start in the right direction as soon as the ball is hit. So do Simmons. He starts directly for the spot where the ball will drop. Ty Cobb was another quick thinker who saved himself thousands of steps."

Junata College Wins Triangular Track Meet

Chestertown, Md., April 19. (AP)—Junata College won a triangular track meet here this afternoon, piling up a total of 82 points to top Washington College, the host school, with 56, and Blue Ridge College with 15.

The meet was run in a cold drizzling rain and mud hampered the competitors.

Ed Buck, Washington College captain, was victorious in both the 100 and 220 yard dashes and Jackson, also of Washington, copped the broad jump. Weber and Sheiler each accounted for three winning efforts for Junata and the latter also took second place in the low hurdles. The best effort for Blue Ridge was a second place by Shea in the shot-put.

Red Sox at Home Split Twin Bill With Athletics

Johnson's Homer Sews Up Second Game for A's By 3-1 Score

Boston, April 19. (AP)—After launching their home season by coming from behind for a 7-6 victory over the Athletics this morning, the Red Sox lost their first 1940 game by a 3-1 margin in the afternoon end of their twin bill.

Jimmy Foss, who collected his second homer in as many days, Dom Dimaggio and Doc Cramer hit hard enough to knock in all seven of the Sox's runs in the afternoon end of their twin bill.

The Athletics, however, settled the afternoon contest at Emerson Dickman's expense in the first inning.

Dickman, starting only his second game as a Red Sox chucker, opened by walking Benny McCoy, who went around to third on Wally Moses' single. After Al Simmons forced Moses and McCoy scored, Bob Johnson hit a homer into the visiting team's bullpen in right field to clinch the game.

NOT IOWA'S FIRST FAMILY, BUT--

No prouder family in Iowa these days than the William Fellers of Van Meter. Feller is the father of Bobby Feller, youthful Cleveland pitching phenom, who opened the major league campaign by hurling a no-hit game against the Chicago White Sox. Bobby's mother and father and sister Margaret are shown in Chicago where he hurled his perfect game.

The Sportlight by GRANTLAND RICE

AS THE DERBY COMES ON.

The argument that the Kentucky Derby is held too early is heard as rain and wind sweep the tracks, keeping the colts and fillies in the barns of otherwise retarding their training. Eligibles are being knocked off almost every day either by lack of condition or injuries suffered in the rush to get ready. And if there isn't a favorable switch in the weather within the next week or so, it may be that one of the smallest Derby fields of all time will go to the post.

Latest of the well-liked colts to be withdrawn was Arnold Hanger's Roman Flag. There isn't anything the matter with Roman Flag that three weeks or so of training won't cure but the Derby is just two weeks away and Max Hirsch, who trains him, refused to take a chance on hurrying him by forcing him beyond his regular routine.

E. R. Bradley's Bimelech, winter book favorite, has been slow and Mr. Bradley said recently that it was no sure shot his colt would go to the post. Much has been made of the fact that this may be the last Derby in which Mr. Bradley will have an entry and that he wants almost desperately to win it, especially as Bimelech is a son of Black Toney, the horse that the master of Idle Hour loved more than any other horse he ever owned. But while all this is true it is obvious that he isn't going to risk breaking Bimelech down—not even to win the Derby.

An Old Objection
The original objection of many of the more prominent owners in the East to sending their colts or fillies to the Derby was that it was run too soon. They said it was foolish to get them ready for so stern a test the first week in May. But with the growth of the Derby's prestige to a point where it is considered by track fans to be the most important three-year-old race in the country, they weakened and the great names of the East are seen on the owners list at Churchill Downs.

This year there has been a sharp revival of the old objection because, all over the country, the weather has been so bad. For once differences of opinion as to the best section in which to winter—North, South or Pacific Coast—have been unimportant, since no matter where the candidates wintered, most of them are far off Derby form. As for those who are sticking along, running well and almost certain to hear the bugle call on May 4, it didn't seem to make any difference where they spent the winter.

Andy K. and Some Others
Andy K., second choice in the winter book, has been working briskly in Maryland, and last week at Havre de Grace beat two other Derby eligibles—Royal Man and Cockerel—in a race in which he didn't run out and so lost ground as he did in so many of his races as a two-year-old.

Jim Fitzsimmons had the Belair colts, Fenelon and Dusky Fox, at Aqueduct all winter but has them in surprisingly fine condition, as they demonstrated on opening day at Jamaica, when Fenelon won the Cedar Manor, beating C. V. Whitney's Carrier Pigeon, which was unbeaten as a two-year-old. Dusky Fox ran out of the money that day but ran easily and Mr. Fitz was content with the form he showed.

Carrier Pigeon's defeat was not exactly a shock to Mr. Whitney. He believed the colt was a little short and so he was. With that race behind him, he is a little closer to the peak.

At Keeneland, in Kentucky, A. L. Ferguson has Black Brummel, a real Derby dark horse. The other day Black Brummel tangled with three other Derby hopefuls—Valite, Tiptity and Mission Step—and beat them handily. Maxwell Howard's Victory Morn—the smallest thoroughbred in training, incidentally—was beaten, along with Carrier Pigeon and Dusky Fox by Fenelon on Jamaica opening day, but came through the race nicely. W. L. Brann, who sent Challeon to the Derby last year and saw him beaten eight lengths by Johnston (Mr. Brann had his revenge a week later at Pimlico when Challeon won the

Fort Hill Meets Massanutten in Twin Clash Today

Sentinel Baseball and Track Teams at Woodstock

Fort Hill High School's baseball and track teams are scheduled to journey to Woodstock, Va., to meet Massanutten Military Academy out-ists, today.

Coach "Bobby" Cavanaugh's Sentinel baseball team will leave for Woodstock at 7 o'clock this morning while the track meet, a dual affair, will be staged in the afternoon. Fort Hill baseballers will leave for Woodstock at 7 o'clock.

The Sentinels will be captained by Homer Frye, catcher, who served as Nelson Kaylor's understudy last year. John Garlitz is second-string receiver this season.

Coach Cavanaugh reports that mound prospects are the best in years with plenty of high-grade material. Richard Frey or Gale Calhoun will start on the slab today. Both are righthanders with Calhoun a holdover.

The infield includes two holdovers: regulars—First Sacker Jack Cook and Second Baseman Jack Carnell. A newcomer, Raphael Ogle, will be at third while Howard Nesbitt will hold down the shortstop position.

Earl Drenning, a ninth grader, is utility infielder.

In the outfield will be Joe Horwath, a regular in 1939; Paul Whitford, utility man a year ago, and Robert Lemaster, a newcomer. Billy Dean, regular outfielder last season, has decided to devote his time to track this season.

Other good prospects are Pitchers Gene Hook, Tom Wagner, Harold Miller, Ray Lemaster and Wilbur Bell; Infielders Richard Bennett, Drou Zembower, Darius Zehrbach, George Evans and Joe Reed, and Outfielders Robert McLuckie, Steve Cornish, Lawrence Juliano, Marcellus Chaney and James Lowery.

Because of spring football drills and the recent inclement weather, outdoor practice has been limited.

Flood Danger Feared If Rainfall Continues

Rumors and Alarm Spread in City, Many Calls Made

Hundreds of calls from flood-fearful Cumberland citizens last night poured in at The News, the police department, and to the railroad.

Although swollen and muddy, neither Wills Creek or the Potomac River had reached a dangerous stage last night.

In the event the rain continues to fall all day today, there is a grave possibility of flood danger, officials admitted.

Although heavy rain was reported up the river at Kitzmiller and beyond last night, the Potomac had not risen to any extent by midnight. The water mark at Blue Bridge was slightly over three feet. Eight feet is flood stage.

The dispatcher at the B&O declared the calls that poured in on him all evening had interfered with his getting his work done, declared "There's nothing to worry about unless this rain continues to come down all night and tomorrow."

Hundreds of motorists and pedestrians last night flocked to the banks of the Potomac to look the situation over.

At midnight the West Virginia Pulp and Paper mill reported the river rising about an inch an hour, and that it had reached thirty-one inches. Ninety-two inches is flood level there.

Hyndman reported that Wills Creek was up four feet, but that the situation was far from alarming yet. The creek was not as high there at midnight as it was two weeks ago.

Heavy rains continued through the area, however.

Chosen Friends Lodge Celebrates 100th Birthday

150 Attend Ceremonies And Supper

Friendship, love, and truth were the fundamental ideas emphasized by Charles E. Shaw, of Cumberland, last night at the 100th anniversary celebration of Chosen Friends Lodge No. 34, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, at the IOOF hall, South Mechanic street.

Mr. Shaw, principal speaker at the centennial affair, described friendship, love, and truth as the underlying principles of the Odd Fellows organization. He discussed briefly the success and benefits of the lodge, which was founded April 16, 1840.

He noted that the lodge, one of Cumberland's oldest fraternal organizations, has a membership of 216 to date.

A grand march opened the program and the Rev. J. Fred Zimmerman offered the invocation and benediction.

Drills were presented by Allegany Canto No. 4, of Cumberland, and Hollidaysburg, Pa.; Canto No. 26 and the women of the Theta Rho club. A male quartet sang, and group singing also prevailed.

During the program, fifty-five living past noble grands of the lodge were honored. They were: Frank Billmeyer, E. S. Coffman, Thomas B. Cessna, J. V. Cookerly, E. F. Cunningham, Oliver W. Diehl, C. Tax Commission Inspects Homes On West Side

Hearings Completed On Protests against Assessment Rate

Excessive taxation on Washington street properties amounts to confiscation, former Judge Albert A. Doubt Sr. informed the members of the State Tax Commission yesterday at the Court House.

The commission, comprised of Harry O. Levin, chairman, Dr. Thomas W. Koon, and J. Weese Carter, sat yesterday to hear the final arguments in the assessment appeals case of former Judge Doubt, Joseph B. Finan, and the McMullen brothers.

The county, represented by Walter Capper, counsel for the board of county commissioners, contends that the properties being considered are fairly and equitably assessed to the full cash value.

Figures Cited

Judge Doubt, in his argument, cited the case of the Finan property located at 527 Washington street which was sold for $8,000 in 1935 and assessed at $29,000. Since then, the assessment on this property has been reduced to $23,900 which is still exorbitant, Judge Doubt said.

Citing his own case, Judge Doubt declared that when he bought his present home he had a large family and needed plenty of room. He no longer needs such a large house and has been trying to sell it for ten years, he declared. But he can't get a buyer due to the staggering assessment on it, Judge Doubt said.

Case Now Under Advisement

All appellants in the case declared they wanted taxation relief and a reduction in excessive assessments. Finan was represented by Attorney F. A. Puderbaugh and Daniel P. McMullen represented the McMullen brothers.

The commission took the case under advisement after hearing the arguments. The three members of the board and Somerville Nicholson, county supervisor of assessments, inspected the properties under consideration.

Dewey Unopposed In Md. Primary

Practically Handed 16 Votes in the Republican Convention

Annapolis, Md., April 19. (AP)—Maryland's sixteen votes in the Republican national convention were all but handed to Thomas E. Dewey on a platter today when the New Yorker filed his candidacy in the states May 6 presidential preference primary.

As the lone candidate—Republican or Democratic—to file in the presidential race here, the only chance Dewey took was the outside one of an uninstructed delegation.

Former Gov. Harry W. Nice, titular Republican leader in Maryland and himself a candidate for the senatorial nomination said that, so far as he knew, there would be no uninstructed county delegations.

Both Nice and his senatorial opponent, William F. Broening, previously had announced for Dewey. Both sent the New Yorker congratulatory telegrams and renewed pledges of support.

Earlier this week, Dewey challenged Senator Taft of Ohio to contest with him in Maryland, but Taft yesterday turned down the invitation. The Ohioan pointed to the fact that Nice and Broening were pledged to Dewey and probably would control the primary vote.

Taft noted that O. E. Weller, Maryland's Republican National Committeeman, and W. David Thigman, Jr., the State GOP chairman, both had urged him to remain out of the state picture and "avoid any intensification of the partisan contest."

Official Manual 'Makes' Buchholtz Clerk, Makes Commissioners Mad

The new Maryland Manual was delivered at the office of the county commissioners yesterday, but the attractiveness of the book did not make up for an "oversight" which resulted in one or two officials letting off steam.

The officials got their dander up when they noted that William H. Buchholtz is listed as clerk to the county commissioners under the heading "Elected Officials."

"Oversight," said one county official flipping the page and pointing to the name of Dr. H. V. Deming, listed as county coroner.

"We haven't had a county coroner since June, 1939," the official declared. "In other words, they went, officials, etc."

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON Associated Press Staff Writer

An ominously deceptive appearance of a hull, induced by a strict censorship over Franco-British preparations to battle the Nazi invaders of Norway, obscures the scene on the European war's new north front.

It does not conceal, however, the obvious fact that London and Paris are girding for what they hope will develop into the crucial clash of their war with Germany. Despite secrecy as to details of military preparations, it is already clear that Winston Churchill sounded the keynote of Allied purposes last week.

He told Parliament then that Hitler had committed his "fatal blunder" by exposing himself to Allied attack in Scandinavia. There is little reason to doubt that Franco-British leaders are straining every nerve to make the most of what they regard as a long sought opportunity to take the military offensive as well as redoubtable effect of their economic choke-hold on the foe.

The very rigidity with which London and Paris are masking details of landing operations in Norway and the size and composition of their forces is an indication that they are planning in terms of troops by the hundred thousand.

Some estimates place the total of Nazi troops now in Norway at 60,000 to 70,000. In all probability, they are light forces, not as yet fully equipped with all the heavy impedimenta of modern, mechanized warfare.

In illustration of that, Swedish reports tell of perhaps 2,000 Nazi troops a day being ferried by air from Denmark to Norway. At most, only light and medium machine guns could be included in their equipment.

It is old-style war, as compared to the German blitzkrieg in Poland, or even the Russo-Finnish battle on the Karelian Isthmus studied with Mannerheim line forts and pill box defenses.

Seventeen Students Looking Forward To Solo Flights

Rain and mud failed to keep five local flying students from passing their solo flight tests before the government examiner at the Mexico Farms airport yesterday.

The examinations were given by Eugene McCurdy, of Pittsburgh, examiner for the Civil Aeronautics Authority. Yesterday's examinations were the first here since January.

Instructor Rannella now has seventeen students who are making preparations for their solo flights.

Civilization Due For Early Smash, Historian Asserts

Races Other Than American of Western Claimed Coming Next

Philadelphia, April 19. (AP)—Reasons to believe that civilization is about to smash up and that leadership for its rebuilding will pass into the hands of races other than those of western Europe and the United States were described today to the American Philosophical Society.

On the brighter side, the society was told of new mass cultural movements in the United States and of scientific advances here which promise aid for western civilization.

The reports were made at all-day symposium on American culture. Dr. Alfred V. Kidder, chairman of the division of historical research, Carnegie Institution of Washington, traced the maps of migration of world leadership in the past.

"It is seen," he said, "that while there has been a comforting general rise in civilization, its mounting course has been interrupted by drops proportionate in violence to the heights of each preceding peak, and the map shows that once a people has reached a position at the top of the heap it inevitably has fallen, and leadership has been taken over by dwellers in some other land."

"All of which would seem to mean that our present order is due for a terrific smash, and that the next advance will be made by races other than those of western Europe and the United States."

Roosevelt Keeps Eye on Europe From Warm Springs

Warm Springs, Ga., April 19. (AP)—President Roosevelt came back tonight to his snug, white-frame cottage on Pine Mountain to rest, keep a weather eye on Europe's war, and make what may be his first purely political speech in months.

He wanted to spend two weeks at the Warm Springs infantile paralysis foundation, a nationally famous institution which he helped establish nearly a score of years ago to assist in the fight against a dread disease. There was no assurance, however, that rapidly changing world affairs might not cause him to return to the capital earlier.

Of more immediate interest than the still nebulous possibilities of a further expansion of the war was a speech Mr. Roosevelt agreed to make tomorrow night by radio to dinners of Young Democrats clubs over the country.

During a dreary, sullen day while an incessant rain streaked the windows of his car and turned Georgia hillside to an even deeper red, Mr. Roosevelt worked away on the address and on a stack of official papers.

WPA Workers Buy Truck To Ride to Savage Dam

Twenty-seven-year-old Bill Patton estimates he is destined to travel over 15,000 miles to and from the Savage River Dam project in the next three years.

Patton, a former B&O employee who lives at 353 Williams street, worked on the cross-town water line until he was laid off, then decided he'd see what he could do about getting a job on the dam. He called on Henry Tarring Jr., WPA resident engineer.

"Get transportation up there and back and then come back here and we'll talk business," Tarring told him.

Wanted City Truck First

Patton didn't know just how he was going to get transportation and gave the matter some thought. Finally, he happened to see an old city truck and decided he'd try and convince the mayor and council they should give it to him.

Enlisting eleven recruits who said they wouldn't mind traveling some seventy miles to and from a job every day, Patton went to Commissioner Thomas F. Conlon and broached the proposition.

A check revealed that the city had use for its truck but Conlon decided he'd help Patton get a truck anyway.

Take Up Collection

"Are you any good at soliciting?" Conlon inquired. Patton said he was.

The commissioner drew up a subscription paper and started the ball rolling by donating two dollars. Patton sallied forth and promptly nailed Mayor Harry Irvine, the other three commissioners, and a number of other city employees and business men.

Meanwhile, Conlon contacted the Steinhil Motor and Transportation company, asked what they had in the way of used trucks. They had a 1931 model that required a down payment of $20 and a balance of $45.

When Patton had raised the necessary $20 for the down payment, he bought the truck. The Buchanan Lumber Company promised to furnish lumber for seats.

Runs All Right

Wednesday, Patton took his truck for a trial spin to the dam project and back and said on his return that it was very satisfactory.

"I'm going to charge the passengers three dollars every pay until the truck is paid for," Bill said. "Then we'll buy a better truck."

The driver estimates his crew of Cumberland workers will have to start at 6.15 a. m. every day in order to get to work at 8.

Passengers will be Charles W. Dean, John F. Stevens, William Rogan, Warner Cunningham, Lee White, Elmer Beeman, George Diver, John Ashenfelter, Francis Hamilton, Francis W. Conners, and Henry Rhodes.

Last Registration Date Is Tuesday, April 30

Qualified citizens who want to vote in the hotly-contested primary elections, but who are not registered, have just one chance to get their names on the rolls.

That will be Tuesday, April 30, one week before election day.

The county's seventy-three polling places will be open April 30 for registration from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.

New voters who were registered for the recent city elections will have to re-register for the state elections, since the county keeps a separate list of voters.

Not "and Wife"

In signing an hotel register, a man should sign for himself and wife, "Mr. and Mrs. William Jones," the board.
